World in Brief

Reagan, Ford Search for Support

WASHINGTON—Ronald Reagan and Gerald Ford will spend the next four weeks searching for that elusive flashpoint of support that could end their increasingly bitter struggle for the Republican presidential nomination and allow full time pursuit of Jimmy Carter and his unified Democratic party.

UPI's survey showed President Ford has 1,098 delegates pledged or leaning to him while 1,062 were committed or leaning to Reagan. There are 99 uncommitted votes as the Aug. 16 GOP convention nears.

'Mystery Man' Gives Kidnap Data

CHOWCILLA, Calif.—A mystery man has provided authorities with information that could lead to identification of two of the armed gunmen who kidnaped 26 school children and their bus driver.

Authorities said Sunday night that names and photographs of the two suspects could be obtained within 48 hours based on information given detectives by a Sorora, Calif. man.

No Leads Found On Spain Bombings

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — Police officials said today they had no conclusive leads on who carried out a wave of bombings Sunday on the 40th anniversary of the uprising that established the regime of Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

But the authorities said leaflets were found scattered in the northwestern town of El Ferrol. police said. They said the leaflets implicated leftwingers in the two blasts in the province of Galicia.

But as for the other bombings an interior ministry official said "We have no conclusive leads."

Viking 1 Awakens From Hibernation

PASADENA, Calif.—Viking 1's three-legged lander was awakened from hibernation today and tested to make sure it is ready to land on Mars Tuesday morning.

One system after another was turned on, tested and then turned off by radio signals sent 214 million miles from earth to Mars by engineers at Jet Propulsion Laboratory's Control Center.

Deadline Set for Filing of Objections

Esopus Flood Work To Start

The Army Corps of Engineers says work could begin this summer.

After more than 10 years of prodding by local governmental officials including Rep. Hamilton Fish Jr., R-25th Dist., and Mayor Francis R. Koenig, the corps announced the date of Aug. 16 has been set as the deadline for filing of any criticisms or protests about the project.

But while Koenig believes it is imperative the project be started this year, citing the havoc created in February by two days of thaw and rain along the flood plain, Legislator Richard D. Nace, R-Dist.5, will once again protest the plan unless the Town of Ulster is included in the project.

The $2 million flood control project, authorized under the Flood Control Act, calls for 1,565 feet of levees and 910 feet of walls along the south bank of the Esopus Creek.

The principle cause of the flooding is the inability of the existing channel to carry the rain and snow runoff at all times.

The flood area consists of about 60 acres extending from Route 28, Washington Avenue, east to Chandler Drive and from the Penn Central Railroad to Esopus Creek.

According to the corps, the one-sided dike project would increase the water level on the Town of Ulster side of the creek by two inches, considered by federal officials to be an insignificant amount.

But Nace disagrees, feeling the increase could mean disaster to properties on the west side of the creek.

Nace secured about 50 petitions last March from Ulster residents who want the town to be included in the project.

The corps believes the objection invalid since is the corps policy to solve flood problems in one location at a time, according to Samuel T. Tosi, chief of the River Basin Section. He said the corps will study the situation further, if warranted. .

Flood protection work will also include a ponding area, pumping station and drainage facilities. Trees and shrubs will be planted along the levees and floodwalls to beautify the setting of the project, according to Thomas C. Hunter Jr., district engineer New York District.

MARKET BASKET

City Food Prices Up .7%

KINGSTON — The cost of feeding a family of four in Kingston rose .7 per cent last week to $66.46, according to figures released today by the Ulster County Consumer Information Service.

But across the county, the price of a standard 41-item market basket of food fell .4 per cent during the week ending July 16 to $67.01. Kingston was the cheapest place to buy food in Ulster County.

The totals for the other areas included in the survey are: Ellenville-Warwarsing, $66.74; Port Ewen-New Paltz-Rosendale, $66.94; Lloyd-Marlborough, $67.01; and Woodstock-Saugerties, $67.88, 2 per cent higher than Kingston's figure.

The previous week's totals were $65.99 in Kingston and $67.01 across the county.

The price of fresh produce was up 3 per cent, while beverages and grain products rose 2 per cent. Declines were posted in the meat and fish category.

The figures are based on a survey of three Kingston supermarkets and 13 other chain food stores across the county.

Tombstone Find Puts McNeils in Spotlight

TIVOLI — Thrust into the national spotlight by a Thomas Paine tombstone, Mr. and Mrs. Jack F. McNeil are now beset by trampled grass, security worries and a sore throat from talking to reporters.

From about the time the Sunday Freeman hit the street with a story about the apparently 167-year-old tombstone the McNeils unearthed Saturday while digging a septic system in the back yard, their phone has been busy.

"It started ringing Sunday afternoon, was busy until 11 o'clock Sunday night, then started up again at 7 this morning. I'm getting a sore throat," said Mrs. McNeil, a school bus driver who was supposed to be enjoying a vacation this week.

Her husband, a heavy equipment operator for the state, did manage to go to work this morning, but he wasn't able to relax much Sunday in the onslaught of newspaper and broadcast reporters, some calling from as far away as California.

Sometime today, an expert historian, the director of the Yesteryear Museum in Morristown, N.J., will arrive at the McNeils' four-acre spread to try to check the authenticity of the stone bearing the name of America's most famous Revolutionary War pamphleteer.

One side of the seven-foot-long marble monument is inscribed with Paine's name, birth date and place, and the exact day of his death in New York in 1809. However, the other side is dedicated to John C. Lasher, who died 68 years later.

Although many new questions now must be answered, Paine's burial place has been a mystery ever since 1819 when his body reportedly was lost while being moved from his New Rochelle farm to his native England.

"When we brushed off the dirt and I read the name, I said, 'Oh no, not THE Thomas Paine.' But my daughter got out the encyclopedia , and all the dates matched," Mrs. McNeil said.

After the discovery, the McNeils cordoned off the stone with their family vehicles and several of their German shepherd dogs. The family slept fitfully Sunday night, half expecting to be awakened by the dogs barking at intruders.

"The man from the museum said he has the only known monument of Thomas Paine in the world, and he advised us to lock ours up. Oh boy," Mrs. McNeil sighed.

She and her husband are "withholding judgment" on what they will do if the stone is found to be authentic — and therefore priceless.

Crash Kills Kerhonkson Man

WARWARSING — A Kerhonkson man was killed and three others were injured in a one-car crash early this morning on Cape Road in Warwarsing.

Thomas Marsallo, 22, of Berme Road, Kerhonkson was killed when the car struck a tree and a concrete archway. The driver, Michael J. Smith, 23, and two other passengers, Donna Coyle, 21, and John Sakowski, 23, all of them Syracuse residents, were taken to Ellenville Hospital where their condition is described as "fair".

The car, heading east on Cape Road failed to negotiate a left-hand curve one-tenth of a mile from the Irish Cape Road. The car travelled about 140 feet before crashing into the two obstacles, Hurley state police reported.

Smith is being treated for scalp lacerations, Sakowski for shoulder injuries, and Ms. Coyle for abrasions of the neck and forehead. She will be X-rayed today to detect a possible pelvic fracture.

Smith was charged with driving while intoxicated.

Hoffman Blaze Believed Arson

KINGSTON — The arson investigation unit of the Kingston Fire Department and Kingston city detectives say the June 4 fire at the 300-year-old Hoffman House on North Front Street was almost certainly set deliberately.

Captain Robert Priest of the arson investigation unit says that patterns in the scorching of the floor of the building indicate the presence of an incendiary liquid. The liquid collects in the low spots on the floor, and as a result these areas are scorched more deeply. Samples of the flooring have been analyzed, but tests have proved inconclusive as to the type of liquid used.

Priest said questioning of the workmen involved in the renovation of the historic house have shown that it is unlikely the fire was set accidentally and that there was no satisfactory explanation for the presence of the incendiary liquid — except arson.

Group Wants to Buy Catskill Line

Railroad Could Be Saved

KINGSTON — The latest strategy to save the picturesque Catskill Mountain Branch Railroad is to "buy it by default" and run it locally after federal subsidies run out next month.

"In a way, I'm glad to see this coming to a head because I'm opposed to the present system of subsidized operation," said Earl Pardini, president of Catskill Mountain Transportation Corp. (CMTC), a group trying for the past three years to rescue the 83-mile line from Kingston to Bloomville.

With a local, non-union crew, more efficient management and increased tourist trade, there is a "very definite possibility" the line can survive, Pardini said.

Penn Central Railroad now operates the branch with the help of a $404,421 federal subsidy, but that money runs out Aug. 31. State transportation authorities last week announced they won't recommend putting more subsidies into the line.

"When operations cease or sometime very shortly after that, Penn Central is going to have to sell that branch. I think we can buy it by default," Pardini said.

"One thing is sure. Nobody else is going to be around to buy it."

Disappointed that the state seems to be bowing out of the picture, Pardini held Penn Central chiefly responsible for what he called a subsidy "ripoff."

With crews imported from as far away as New Jersey, with union "featherbedding" on repair jobs and with apathetic management, the line's operation has been "intentionally depleted to a disgusting level," Pardini said.

At one time, CMTC had informally negotiated the buying price of the line down to $850,000, but then the federal Conrail (consolidated railroad) system was instituted, the Catskill branch was shuffled out, and Penn Central put a $5 million price tag on it, a move Pardini saw as a desperation attempt to recoup heavy losses.

For tax purposes in the towns through which it runs, the line is valued somewhere around $2.5 million.

Although the line last year ran 575 carloads, mostly one-way freight feed hauls to dairy farmers, CMTC at one time had signed commitments from agricultural and other users that would have pushed the annual traffic up to 1,700 carloads a year.

Also at one time, there were promises of federal "discretionary" funds to match any local or state pledges to buoy up the line, but the state now has said that the discretionary fund plan has been scrapped on the federal level.

"It's all crazy," Pardini said. "It's all a matter of whose hand you shake in Washington. It makes me sick."

Although there are federal subsidies available for rail lines with social and environmental importance, the Catskill branch hasn't been put in that category by federal and state authorities, a decision that Pardini disputes.

Although the line weaves within yards of heavily traveled Rt. 28, the Catskill railroad passenger gets a "very serene, beautiful feeling that you don't get any other place. It's like taking a journey into the past." Pardini said.

With a surplus locomotive or two, with additional freight customers like timber industries needing low-cost transportation of bulk wood chips, and with extra tourist business, possibly weekend excursions from New York City, the Catskill Mountain Branch could be a viable operation, Pardini said.

POOL'S OPEN

A long time in coming, the new intermediate pool at Kingston Point is now being used by classes and special groups. Here, a group of youngsters with learning disabilities gets supervised instruction under a program funded by a $2,000 IBM grant to the Association for Children with Learning Disabilities, Ulster County Chapter. The pool, a uniform four feet deep, was started under the administration of Mayor Raymond Garrigan but was beset by years of paint and liner problems, finally straightened out this summer.

Murder Attempt Investigated

ARKVILLE — The attempted murder of Orville J. Chase, 58, of Arkville is being investigated by state police from Kingston and Margaretville.

Chase, 58, the caretaker of the Kingdon Gould estate in Arkville, was fired upon three times at 10:15 Friday night as he was riding in his pickup truck along Dry Brook Road in Arkville.

As he was travelling along the road, looking for a stray calf, a pickup truck began to pass him on the left. As the truck pulled alongside, an unknown passenger fired a rifle shot at Chase, narrowly missing him and passing through a window.

A second and third shot were fired as the battered truck pulled in front of Chase and sped away. One of those shots hit Chase's windshield.

A $5,000 reward for the apprehension and conviction of the criminals has been offered by Kingdon Gould.

The pickup truck is described as an old, battered Dodge The dark-colored vehicle has no rear bumper, a severely dented tailgate, and a visibly vibrating right rear fender, according to Hurley State Police.

Couple Killed in Greene

A teenaged couple died Saturday night when they were thrown out of their car after it turned over on Route 81 in Greenville.

Robert Meher, 17, of Fourth Street, Troy, the owner and driver of the car, and his passenger, Kathleen Kelly, 17, of 11 Warmington St., Albany, were travelling east on Route 81 at a high rate of speed when their car veered off the south side of the road, Leeds State Police stated.

The 1971 Chevrolet then skidded across the road, and hit and rolled over a guardrail. Police conjecture that the car's doors opened during the rollover.

The two were pronounced dead on the scene with many severe injuries. One was found lying over the rail, the other beyond it.

A Surprise Dip

A Saugerties man took an unexpected dip last night when his car ended up on its roof in a creek near Blue Mountain Reservoir.

Alan R. Shultis, 21, of 1249 Van Vliderden Rd., Saugerties was turning left to continue on Van Vlierden Road in a southeasterly direction at 6 p.m. Sunday when he lost control of the vehicle, Saugerties Town Police said. He was travelling at a high rate of speed, police added.

His car, a 1968 Ford, hit a guardrail, rolled over it, and then rolled down a hill into a small creek below the reservoir. The car was totalled, but Shultis was unharmed.

He was charged with driving while intoxicated and travelling at a speed not reasonable. He was and arraigned before Saugerties Town Judge Timothy Murphy. He was released in $50 bail and the custody of his father.

Dutchess Driver Fair

Terance Deatore, 18, of Clinton Corners, is listed in fair condition today after the car he was driving flipped over in the middle of Route 308 in Rhinebeck.

His car, a 1968 Dodge, ran off the north shoulder of the road, headed back across the highway, turning upside down in the middle of the roadway at 1:55 a.m. today.

He was taken to Northern Dutchess Hospital and transferred this morning to St. Francis Hospital, suffering from possible fractures of the knee, lower leg, and foot.

Ulster Man Arrested

An Ulster man was arrested by the Ulster County Sheriff's Department for crashing into a parked car along Locust Street in Ulster early Sunday morning.

A 1967 Chrysler, owned by Ms. Mary Powers of Locust Street was found Sunday morning 15 feet from the street on a lawn,severely damaged. Several mailboxes were found overturned as well.

An investigation conducted by Dennis Rowe and and Deputy Sheriff Bill Van Wagenen led to the arrest of Bruce Whitmore, 24, of Sunset Gardens, Ulster. He was charged with leaving the scene of an accident.

Whitmore appeared before Ulster Town Judge John Gottelli, and pleaded guilty to the charge. He was realeased without fine or sentence pending a further court appearance.

Teens Picked Up

Three teenaged girls, behaving in an allegedly suspicious manner in a wooded area behind Marcel's Restaurant in Esopus were picked up at 3 a.m. this morning by the Ulster County Sheriff's Department.

The young women, residents of St. Cabrini's Home in West Park, were returned to the home. Thomas Johnson of the Juvenile Aid Bureau and Corporal David Hyatt are investigated the possibility that the women were meeting with local youths. A conference between the Juvenile Aid Bureau and St. Cabrini's Home is planned.

'Jaws' Strikes Again

POIPU, Kauai (UPI) — The body of a scuba diver ravaged by sharks was found a mile from where he disappeared while trying to swim to shore from a disabled boat.

Stephen C. Powell, San Jose, Calif., was diving with three other men near Makahuena Point Friday when the engine of their boat broke down. All four swam for shore, but only three reached there.

The Coast Guard said the lower half of Powell's body was recovered Saturday east of the point. A spokesman said it was not known whether Powell was killed by sharks or drowned before being attacked by them.

Usery Steps Into Westinghouse Strike

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Labor Secretary William J. Usery personally intervened Sunday in the dispute between Westinghouse Electric Corp. and three big unions whose strike has closed company plants and repair shops across the country.

A spokesman for Usery said he arrived at Westinghouse headquarters at 9:30 a.m. and immediately entered the talks. He made the decision to attempt mediation Saturday evening after discussing the situation on the telephone with the parties involved.

The spokesman said he did not know how long Usery would remain directly involved. The Labor secretary mediated the Westinghouse contract talks three years ago when he served as director of the Federal Mediation Service.

About 41,000 workers are now affected by the walkout.

Westinghouse said 45 manufacturing plants and 41 repair shops had been closed by the strike. About 14 other company operations still remain open due to local contract arrangements, the firm said.

A joint statement issued by a negotiating committee representing the three unions accused Westinghouse of bargaining in bad faith.

"We have bent and postponed to the limit of our members' patience," the unions said.

D.J. Povejsil, Westinghouse vice president of personnel and administration, called the dispute a "dilemma."

He said that was because "our package is fully equal to the GE (General Electric Corp.) settlement."

Westinghouse has offered the unions a 36-month contract that includes wage and benifit increases and a cost-of-living safeguard.

The International Union of Electrical Workers and the United Electrical Workers, representing about 28,000 employes, Sunday joined the nationwide strike that began earlier in the week.

Last Monday, 13,000 members of of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers walked out when their contract expired. The other unions had extended the contract on a dayto-day basis.

Westinghouse has about 150,000 employes not represented by the unions.

An additional 10 other unions representing about 3,000 Westinghouse workers also supported the strike and will join the walkout when their contracts expire.

Auto Workers Foresee Bargaining in Peace

DETROIT (UPI) — Traditionally, negotiations between the United Auto Workers and the nation's four major auto companies open with a handshake. For the past nine years, it's been just as traditional for them to end with a strike.

This year, observers say, things will be different.

UAW President Leonard Woodcock planned to open the talks today, appearing for the traditional handshake with negotiators at General Motors Corp. On Tuesday, he will repeat the performance at Ford Motor Co. and on succeeding days at Chrysler Corp. and American Motors Corp.

The talks are beginning a week later than in past years because UAW officials were in New York city last week to help select Jimmy Carter as the Democratic presidential candidate. Woodcock, an early Carter backer, is almost assured of a post in a Carter administration.

In a year when labor contracts covering more than 4½ million workers are being worked out, the UAW-auto company talks are the largest and may be the most peaceful, observers say.

"There just doesn't seem to be the mood for any major walkout," one veteran labor observer said. "But all that could change by the time the strike deadline of midnight, Sept. 14, approaches."

In each of the past three negotiating sessions, the UAW has called strikes to back its demands — 68 days against Ford in 1967, 67 days against General Motors in 1970 and nine days at Chrysler in 1973.

Key issues appear to be job security, an all-encompassing term the union is using to label its demands for job protection for present workers and creation of more jobs; improved unemployment benefits to cushion workers during layoffs; health care costs; an industry demand that auto workers share in the rapidly escalating costs; and improved pensions.

The industry is in its strongest position since 1973, when it negotiated new contracts as the Arab oil embargo was triggering a two-year slump that at one point put 212,000 workers on indefinite layoff and another 100,000 on temporary layoffs.

With GM and Ford locked in a battle with the introduction of 1977-model cars in the fall, the likelihood of a strike seems even more remote.

Once the ceremonies are out of the way, union and company negotiators at each company will meet in committees to determine what issues might become sore spots.

The UAW traditionally presents its demands to each company by late August. The four automakers can be expected to present nearly identical counteroffers.

At that point, the UAW selects its "target" — the company that must settle by the strike deadline on a pattern-setting agreement or face a strike while its competitors continue to build cars.

Observers say Ford — last the strike target in 1967 — appeared the likely "target," but Woodcock said GM or Chrysler are just as likely.

Town Turns Dump into A Bicentennial Park

SCOTIA, N.Y. (UPI) — A four-acre dumping ground for debris has been turned into a riverside park area here in a Bicentennial transformation which Dennis Madden terms a "minor miracle."

Local residents have Madden, a young Schenectady banker, to thank for the idea and the momentum — and themselves to thank for the follow-through.

The facility, named "Freedom Park," will receive the new York State Bicentennial Barge for three days this week. It took 18 months to plan and build — with the effort coming from local residents, merchants, contractors, and architects who volunteered days, nights and weeekends to make it a success.

Madden, 30, a member of the Schenectady County Bicentennial Commission, got the idea in January 1975 at an Albany meeting with officials of the Bicentennial Barge project.

Communities wishing to host the barge during its 36 stop, four-and-one-half month tour of the state, he was told, would be expected to provide a docking facility large enough to handle the nealy 260 ft. floating museum.

"We had no such facility," Madden says. He returned home and "scoured the banks on both sides of the Mohawk to find an area which might be developed into a proper docking facility."

Madden found a parcel of land on the Scotia side of the Mohawk river which had been used as a landfill site for a construction company. He found the owners of the land and arranged an 18-month $1 lease. He had a local artist and an architect friend draw up renderings and plans for the park — for free.

The actual construction work began last October and the park was dedicated Sunday.

"I didn't think we had a prayer to get it finished in time." Madden remembers. "Last year the volunteers were few and far between." Madden remembers."But this spring, when the project began shaping up, people really began helping. We had persons from all age groups, from all over the capital district. They were just terrific."

Drawing upon volunteered materials and equipment from a wide variety of local groups, Madden says the construction has "changed the whole shape of the area." The site includes an amphitheatre, trees, shrubs, tables and benches, descriptive plaques, and two new piers.

"The park is the most important thing to come out of this celebration. The festival we'll have to welcome the barge will be forgotten in two months. But the park — it will still be here. It would have been a waste of time and money, and very irresponsible of us, to build this park for just a three-day visit."

Madden estimates that had the park not been such a community effort, the project would have cost "at least $100,000." Instead, he says, the out-of-pocket costs will be about one-tenth of that.

The state likes the project so much, Madden says, that they "hold Scotia up as an example."

How did he get all those people to put in all that time, money, and energy?

"I gave 175 speeches," Madden says. "I've had two birthdays since we began this thing. And I feel like I'm 52."

Americans Fleeing Beirut in Scores

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Hundreds of Americans and other foreign nationals today prepared to flee Beirut in what may be the last organized evacuation of foreigners from the ravaged city.

But despite a new wave of assaults in the capital and the countryside, it appeared more than 1,000 Americans decided to take their chances and stay behind.

Left-wing and right-wing reports said fresh Syrian troops and about 30 more Syrian tanks crossed into Lebanon today and some units moved up to Syrian positions at Sofar, 15 miles east of Beirut, and toward leftist outposts around Aintourah, further north.

The troop movements appeared to support the Christian offensive against Aintourah and the Palestinian refugee camp of Tal Zaatar in Beirut.

Heavy fighting raged inside Tal Zaatar, besieged by Christian militamen for four weeks.

Both the Palestinians and the rightists claimed advances in the house-to-house battle, but the defenders managed to hang on through another day of concentrated attacks.

Daylong rocket blasts and machine gun bursts raked rubble-choked streets in Beirut's port and downtown districts.

At the U.S. embassy, hundreds waited in line for hours to sign up for Tuesday's evacuats raked rubble-choked streets in Beirut's port and downtown districts.

At the U.S. embassy, hundreds waited in line including 161 Americans and their dependents. The American community in Beirut is estimated to number about 1,500.

U.S. officials warned earlier that once the convoy left, the embassy no longer would be able to provide protection or services to the American community. Other embassies urged their nationals to join the evacuation, which British officials called "the last foreseeable chance of leaving."

Persistent rumors of a Christian assault on western Beirut, where most foreigners live, convinced many to flee. But Western diplomatic sources said there was "no solid information" to back up the reports.

Several Lebanese citizens also showed up to register for the convoy but were told the United States could evacuate only foreign nationals.

"But I have an American brother-in-law," protested one Lebanese woman. "No one seems to care about the Lebanese."

But left-wing sources gave Jalloud little chance of success and said that if his mission fails, the Syrians might launch a massive offensive in Lebanon.

Record Arrival Time

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — The records William Brannan ordered have arrived — 10 years late.

He received notice Thursday there was a package for him at the post office. He picked it up the next day. The package carried a notice that a mail carrier tried to deliver the package at his home July 16, 1966, but no one was home.

Brannan didn't really mind that 15 of the 35 records were broken. He figures those that are left are worth ten times more now than they were when he ordered them.

Most of discs were recorded in the 1930s by Shep Fields and his Rippling Rhythm and a group called the Hoosier Hot Shots.

STAFF'S CHANCE

The Sahara in Ulster

The Town of Ulster has a lot going for it. There's no doubt about that.

However, the many plusses of this sprawling township — spreading from the area of IBM and its environs over to Spring Lake — certainly don't include the Town of Ulster Little League baseball complex.

And a complex it is.

In addition to the minor league setup and the "older boys" field, there was a new addition this year —one for the young distaffers.

But the complex doesn't stop here. There's a lot of other activity going on —soccer games to the rear of the Chambers School and still other games in the vast setup.

We don't object to all this. It's great for the youngsters and the young people. We only wish this type of organized ball was available when we were younger and playing sandlot ball at St. Mary's Field and the like.

But what we do strenuously object to is the miserable condition of the entrance to this sprawling sports center —a dirt road that resembles the Sahara Desert not only during the sports season but throughout the year as well.

It's not a very pleasant situation for the residents along Van Keuren Road (opposite the field) and it certainly doesn't make visitors to the ball park any happier when they have to go home and wash their cars again.

And they don't have to contend with just the 'Sahara ' desert —there are several good-sized pot holes along the way that aren't the best thing in the world for automobiles.

There have been some attempts to make this roadway a little more presentable in the past.

But how about a concerted effort by town officials —or working jointly with the coffers of the Little League, if necessary —to really do something long-lasting this time?

—Irwin J. Thomas

Are Police Forgiven Everything?

Dear Editor:

in reference to your article "Court Releases Attica Evidence to Officials," July 14.

Am I to understand that Associate Justice Walter J. Mahoney thinks police and prison guards who break laws, abuse their official positions and treat human beings like so many cattle should not be held accountable for their crimes? Isn't a police officer still a man, and therefore governed by law?

The P.B.A., rather than trying to hide its law-breakers behind their "Benevolent Association," would do better by exposing and expelling the offenders. Isn't five years long enough to protect these untried law-breakers?

Constables Responded Quickly

Dear Editor:

As chairman of the Citizens' Action Committee on the Traver Hollow Bridge and as a private citizen, I would like to extend my thanks, and those of my family, for the excellent services performed by the Town of Olive constables.

When, on the afternoon of April 18, I received a phone call threatening to fire-bomb my home, Constables Jacobson and Jaxheimer reacted quickly, and did a great deal to allay my fears and those of my family. Later that same evening, we received calls from Constable Katssor and Town Councilman Adsit assuring us that extra police protection would be provided by both constables and volunteer firemen.

In another, unrelated, incident, the constables are also to be highly praised. If it were not for the quick work of Constables Kassor and Humphrey on the night of June 5, it is probable that the Traver Hollow Bridge would have been damaged far more than it was and that the fire could have become an extended forest fire endangering many lives and homes in the area.

Please convey my personal thanks and those of my family to the fine constabulary of the Town of Olive.

H.J. BREITENBERGER

Money Is Going to Waste

Dear Editor:

Do the good people of Kingston know that while there seems to be no money for schools, teachers, parks, the aged and poor, work projects, or even a vehicle to drive young people to work, $75,000 has been allocated to the Bicentennial Commission for nonsense? $55,000 to go to making a movie about Governor Clinton? This is a crime against humanity. Anyone connected with it should be put away (I'm not talking office workers). Nobody knew that there was government money available to create jobs? You've got to be kidding! Fire them! Get rid of them! They just lost us money!

I think that if you want to celebrate the American Revolution properly, let's have another kind of revolution. And start by having an open hearing — let the local politicians answer, in public, on this question: What have you done for the people of Ulster County? What have you done for Kingston? Ask them what each has done to bring money, jobs into our community!

We need factories and industry to put people back to work, to take them off welfare, to lower taxes (for a change), to rebuild this town and its self respect. So that a member of the Chamber of Commerce doesn't have to make remarks to graduating classes about "Yes, we have no jobs, no future for you here, but don't knock Kingston." If the politicos cannot answer, "I have brought this amount of money/business/jobs into our community or helped lower taxes by ..." then I say, fire them, each and every one of them! Who needs them! They cost too much!

Replace the moochers with salesmen who will work on commission. To keep their jobs, they must produce! They cannot vote themselves pay raises or LULUs — they'll work for us!

Revolution, for the positive, for we, the people. It's the only way to turn this depressed area's situation around. Then we can think about a happy birthday — next year!

Puncturing Conventional Views

Dear Editor:

Reading your "Readers Write" column, July 14, is like reading a sermon in orthodoxy.

Being part Indian and also a direct descendant of Thomas Paine, author of the Bible of the American Revolution, I sit amused while a so-called celebration is a dance on the murdered dead of millions of Indians.

To Edwin J. Higby's letter: Abortion, ruled legal by the federal courts, is not Communism. Could we say that Mrs. McCormick is running for President on the Catholic ticket? Had the parents taught their children the facts of sex, there would be slight need for abortion. Getting into dialogue with the anti-abortionists is a strange land, wherein a fetus is sacred, but slaughtered millions in wars is blessed.

To Mr. George W. Swope's anti-Moonies letter: His preponderant worry is real estate. Why doesn't he look into the largest tax-free landholder in the U.S.A., excluding the Pentagon — namely, the Catholic Church?

To Robert J. Tompkins' incoherent letter against conservationists: Let him rationalize his guilt in other ways. Pointing a gun at a defenseless animal is neither heroic, needed, or ethical. There is no need for killing except the act of killing. Early gunmen killed buffalo and Indians for sport, equating them as inferior, Bible taught. As sidekicks he shot blacks if they desired to live like men.

International Default Looming?

WASHINGTON - Do we have an international version of the New York City default situation in the making?

The poorest countries, the non-oil exporting nations of the Third World, are $100 billion in debt with much of it coming due between now and 1980. Interest and repayment on principle amounts to 15 percent of all the money the countries earn from their exports. They might be able to handle such steep payments except that not only the oil they buy but the manufactured goods and food they import have jumped in price while the raw material commodities they export have collapsed in value.

You aren't being set up here for a bleeding heart pitch to give more money to the lazy natives. In fact, the United States doesn't give away much money any more, and that is a major cause of the problem.

Private banks have been lending these countries money. Emma Rothschild, in a splendidly lucid treatment of this subject in the May 27th and June 24th issues of "The New York Review of Books," notes that 64 percent of Chase Manhattan's profits last year came from its foreign operations. Thus a default by the debtor nations can have an immediate impact on us here at home. Nor is default just a theoretical possibility. In the past year Argentina, Chile and Zaire haven't been able to make their monthly payments and have had to renegotiate their obligations exactly as New York City.

This isn't the first time American banks have lent money to foreign countries only to learn they should have found better, more reliable borrowers. This happened almost regularly with a number of Caribbean countries around the turn of the century. What we used to do then was send the Marines in, seize the custom houses and collect the import duties to satisfy the banks' debts.

Using the Marines as a debt collection agency has gone out of style, at least temporarily. Moreover, occupying a country the size of Argentina or Zaire on behalf of the Bank of America or some such has certain practical drawbacks. Even economic coercion has its limits. We can force debtor countries to take the steps necessary to repay the loans but we run the risk of inciting mutiny in the affected populations. The screamings coming from New York City would be as nothing compared to what might happen abroad in those places where there is no fat to cut.

The total amount of money owing to the banks of the rich nations doesn't represent a terrifying fraction of their assets. Thsy could write off a high percentage of these loans without getting into serious trouble except for the way they lent the money. Most of it is in a mysterious currency known as Eurodollars.

Eurodollars are debts and credits outside the United States for which somebody could theoretically demand actual greenbacks. There are also units of bookkeeping currency called Euromarks and Europyen; that is, obligations outside of West Germany and Japan that can be cashed in back home in Bonn or Tokyo.

The rub is that nobody knows how much Eurodebt is floating around the world. The complexity of this interlocking debt structure makes the riddle of DNA look like the daily crossword puzzle. Rothschild cites, "for example a loan to a Tehran bank provided by the Cayman Islands branch of the Crocker National Bank of San Francisco, three Dutch subsidiaries of Japanese companies and sixteen other institutions." In another recent deal the Ljublianska Banka of Slovenia, Yugoslavia, in conjunction with a New York investment firm, brought forth a note issue expressed in Kuwaiti dinars, that is Eurodinars. Yes, you read it right, Communist nations play these capitalist banking games, too. Cuba and North Korea are Eurodollar borrowers.

If the debt structure goes down, the socialists may go plop right along with the capitalists. The difficulty is that nobody knows how strong or how weak all this wild lending is. We don't have a very clear idea of how many billions are involved, although everybody agrees it's mucho, molto, beaucoup de bucks.

If it seems impossible that the banks don't know the amount of all the loans outstanding, you must remember that banks, when left unregulated, can create money by the process of lending the same dollar over and over again. That's what's happened. The original real dollar upon which the Eurodollar speculation is built has been passed around among so many banks and re-lent so often, nobody is any longer able to keep track of it.

Heavy defaults by Third World nations could be the event that might cause lenders to call in their loans and bring the international money markets down. We have had so little experience with this sort of thing we don't even know how government intervention would operate to stabilize the mess. We don't know what effect this could have on our domestic banking system.

We do know that if American bankers were forced to play by the same rules in their foreign operations that the law makes them play by at home, they could never have gotten into this swamp. We don't know it yet, but we may soon learn that lending money to foreign governments is essentially a foreign policy function that can't be turned over to private banking institutions without great risk and high cost to taxpayers here.

Abolish The Indian Bureau

WASHINGTON — The Bureau of Indian Affairs has treated the Indians so shamefully that it ought to be abolished. This is the secret conclusion of the American Indian Policy Review Commission, which was established by Congress a year ago to investigate the federal government's mismanagement of Indian affairs.

The investigation grew out of a series of dramatic events, which began in November, 1972. As the voters were going to the polls, a coalition of Indian groups arrived in Washington to protest innumerable and timeless grievances.

They first occupied, then vandalized, then looted the building housing the BIA. They had discovered hundreds of file cabinets, which contained documentary evidence of the bungling, neglect and betrayal that have characterized the white man's treatment of the Indian.

Angrily, they spirited the evidence out of Washington. They later smuggled the evidence to us, and we wrote a series of columms. Then we presented the evidence to Congress, testifying how the Indians had been systematically robbed of their land, timber, water and mineral rights. Now the Review Commission has confirmed the sordid facts. It is not scheduled to issue a final report for several months, but its interim findings are detailed in a confidential memorandum.

The memo, written by the commission's director, Ernest Stevens, to its chairman, Sen. Janes Abourezk, D.-S.D', accused the BIA of mishandling Indian money, neglecting their safety and failing to protect their property rights.

The BIA stood by indifferently, the conmission charges, even while known mobsters ripped off Indian land. Here are the details:

The Commission collected evidence that subcontracts to develop land on Indian reservations in New Mexico and Arizona were granted to firms controlled by "known underworld figures." In one case, a development corporation approved by the BIA handed out subcontracts to "one of the major figures in organized crime land fraud operations in the entire Southwest," according to sworn testimony.

Yet incredibly, Indian Affairs Commissioner Morris Thompson was unperturbed. He wrote that the transaction had occurred over three years ago and, therefore, that "the question is now apparently moot."

The Review Conmission called for an investigation of the BIA's role as land trustee and "the BIA personnel responsible for approval of property leases."

Even more incredibly, the commission could find "no federal agency or authority in possession of an accurate assessment of the total federal budget for Indians." The commission pointed out, for example, that the BIA's budget "is not reconcilable" with the amount of money allotted by the White House's budget office. The BIA bureaucrats thought their budget for the current fiscal year was $918 million. But at the White House, the figure was listed as $927.7 million.

"If $20 million is lost in negotiations at the top," declares the memo, "there is no telling what gets lost on the way down."

The memo also cites the case of the industrial park that was supposed to be constructed on Indian land. Ten years ago, the Papago-Tucson Development Corporation leased 80 acres for the development. Although "several hundred thousand dollars" were invested in the project, the secret memo reveals, "today the 80-acre tract is nothing but weeds and dust."

The Papago Indians have also lost "billions of dollars in copper leases," charges the document. In addition, "massive anounts of federal funds" have been wasted in other meaningless and fraudulent projects.

The memo accuses the BIA of indifference toward Indian abuse. The State of Oklahoma, for example, allegedly is "a hot bed of violence and harassment" against Indians. The report cites the dramatic incident of an Indian boy who was arrested last February on breaking-and-entering charges. A state mental hospital examination revealed that the boy displayed no suicidal tendencies. Yet a month later, he was found dead in his jail cell, hanging by a belt which was not his own.

On behalf of the family, the BIA reluctantly asked the FBI for help. The youth's parents have yet to hear another word fron either the BIA or FBI.

The Music of Summertime

Summer is...

A timid breeze spinning leaves at twilight. A blue lake held in the palm of a mountain. A red-faced infant, fighting the heat for 15 rounds in a bassinet. The whispers of air conditioners.

The family countdown to vacation time. Children in big cities playing in the bottoms of ovens. The moment before dawn, when the diamonds are on the lawn. A white cop sweating black through a uniform shirt.

Green apples in orchards waiting for a complexion. Iron faces in a steel train. Finches and robins staking a claim to a branch of a tree. The hum of bees. The diminuendo of a train whistle at night.

Stars - confetti stuck to the ceiling. Fireflies winking at jets, which wink back. Cold cuts and potato salad. A beer perspiring outside a bottle. The cool cellar; the oil burner in cardiac arrest.

A noisy brook busy rounding stones. A leaping trout shattering the mirror of a lake. The four-lane bowels of the city moving sluggishly. Golf balls flying everywhere - summer's hail storm. Old eyes squinting, barely believing in one more summer.

Window curtains flirtatiously lifting their skirts. An old locomotive panting for breath in a station. Ants and aunts at a picnic; the first asking so little. The dark cool of a tavern. Cleaning a cut knee, not forgetting the antiseptic kisses.

The silent furrow of a canoe. A military band fading on the wind. The hush of birds before a thunder shower. Gray ashes in a cold fireplace. A mirage of water on a hot highway. The tickle of perspiration on a tender back.

Big scoops of vanilla clouds in a pale sky. A red-faced thermometer. The dog panting on a tile floor. The tinkling chandelier of ice in a tall glass. White waves collapsing on a beach. The summer mask - sunglasses.

The crack of the bat, the basso profundo of 10,000 throats. The television set, repeating winter hiccups. The massage of a stinging shower. Ths unopened book on the night table. The stalled car, boiling mad. Two larks quarreling over a crumb.

New freckles on new faces. A dance frock taking liberties with long legs. The odor of bubbling tar. The dark mystery of a church. The overworked door on the refrigerator.

White sales and white sails. A squirrel frozen on a tree trunk. A moth dining on winter clothes in a closet. The chill blast outside a movie. The jaundiced wink of Arcturus - the roue of the night sky.

The shoe-button eyes of field mice in a hayloft. Fields of wheat making waves. Seagulls standing in the sky. The molten lava of the metropolis, a million headlights on a highway. Effeminate lawn sprinklers waving their water.

A brook chuckling over a forgotten joke. A melon of a moon. Strong faces in afternoon clouds. A straw hat on an old ice wagon horse. Butter tracing the kernels of corn in braille. The walrus bark of a summer cold.

A big hat framing a beautiful face. Cool sheets. A hummimgbird, kissing flowers to death. Toll booths, legal shakedown artists. Chlorinated eyes. The family album, with heads and arms cut off. The quiet sea, smoothing sandy beaches.

A romantic ship moving off the edge of the world. Teenagers touching fearfully in a dark movie. Cold cereal. Tart strawberries. An ice cream cone. An apoplectic tomato. An old zipper willing to meet you halfway. Taffy. The tinny music of the carousel. A hot dog. Clams on the half shell.

A band concert in the park. A Hawaiian sports shirt. Fresh mugs of beer and a stale quartet. Ties in a closet with their tongues hanging out. Old folks wheeling a supermarket baby carriage. Roller skates. Hopscotch. Hamburgers. Road maps.

Summer is colored balloons, iced tea, a secret diary, Boy Scouts on a hike. It is the time for the acrobatics of beach Apollos, stock car races, dozing on a porch. It is wild daisies, night fireworks, arthritic hands entwined.

It is bright sunlight and small shadows. A time to hope, a time to promise. Summer...

Actress Who Played in Showboat's First Production Returns for Tuesday's Melodrama

EDDYVILLE—The incomparable Pat Mannes arrived in Kingston this week to play Mrs. Upson Asterbilt, a commanding dowager of Newport and Brooklyn,in the Showboat's Tuesday's production, "Dirty Works at the Crossroads." Miss Mannes, remembered for her roles as Vera in "Mame" and Rita Marlow in "Will Success Spoil Rock Hunter," has a special affection for the Showboat and Captain Furbush. Years ago when the Showboat opened off Staten Island, she auditioned for a part in the first Showboat production. She was told, as most hopefuls are, "don't call us, we'll call you," but the phone was ringing when she returned to her apartment and Captain Furbush gave her the happy news that she had gotten the part. Her interest and support of the Showboat have lasted through the years.

Showboat producer Judy Strawn went to New York several weeks ago to pursuade Miss Mannes to come to Kingston to play Mrs. Asterbilt. Happy to be back aboard the Showboat, Miss Mannes commented that "theatre, that fabulous invalid, has picked up a bit, due, of course, to the current wave of nostalgia and the return to the beautifully written plays of the past." When asked about her transition from leading lady to character parts, she said that since she has gained 30 pounds, she no longer picks parts, the parts pick her. A 14-day stint at Duke University on the rice diet was most successful until her gourmet cooking and frequent entertaining caught up with her.

Miss Mannes lives alone amid the brocade and velvet of her unusual home done entirely in shades of rose, her favorite color. She mused, "I have had one husband and one dog. I occasionally consider having another husband, but never another dog because it was so painful when I lost her." Miss Mannes' beloved dog is buried beneath Rudolph Valentino's horse in the Hidden Hills Pet Cemetery in California.

Tongore Garden Club Plans Colonial Tea, Flower Show

SHOKAN—The Tongore Garden Club has announced plans for "Colonial Olive", a Colonial Tea and Flower Show for Aug. 14. The event will be held downstairs at the Olive Free Library in West Shokan fkrom 1 to 5 p.m. In keeping with the Colonial theme, the show will feature small designs and plants reminiscent of the small flower prints of calico and the tiny flowers painted on china and embroidered on linens of the colonial period.

Mrs. E. Lee Denman, general chairperson, has announced that the public may exhibit in all classes and that Junior exhibits are particularly desired.

Chairpersons of the divisions from whom further information may be obtained include Mrs. August Hollender, Horticulture with many classes; Mrs. Raymond Cruthers, Artistic Design with classes specified as America the Bountiful; Colonial Handicrafts; 1976 Centerpiec Nature's Gift and Small Is Beautiful.

Mrs. James McGloughlin, Junior Division chairperson, offers four horticulture classes and three artistic classes: The Boston Tea Party; the Minutemen and In Honor of Betsy Ross.

Dr. and Mrs. Morris Kwit will have charge of the educational division which will be an exhibit called "Small Too Is Beautiful" and will feature photographs and dried and fresh flowers.

Mrs. Robert Larsen will be chairperson for the Colonial Tea; Mrs. Carl Anderson, The Country Store Boutique featuring houseplants, dried materials, hanging planters; Mrs. Frank Snyder, staging Mrs. Hope Miller, posters and signs.

Awards will be made by popular vote.

The Olive Historic Society has scheduled bus trips to points of interest in the Town of Olive, leaving the library throughout the day.

'Fanfare' and 'Union Jack' Will Premiere This Week

SARATOGA SPRINGS—The second week of performance by the New York City Ballet at the Saratoga Festival will feature two Saratoga Premieres, "Fanfare" and "Union Jack."

On Tuesday, July 20, "Fanfare" choreographed by Jerome Robbins, will be danced in Saratoga for the first time. Set to the music of Benjami Britten's "The Young Person's Guide to the Orchestra,"which was written as a work to introduce the instruments of the orchestra to young children, the ballet dancers interpret the music the instruments play.

On Friday evening, July 23, George Balanchine's newest ballet, "Union Jack," will have its first out-of-New York City performance. The ballet, which had its world premiere May 12 at the company's Annual Spring Gala is the second in a series, the first of which was Balanchine's "Stars and Stripes," the festive send-up of Sousa's patriotism which delighted audiences since its premiere in 1958. With a third ballet, "Tricolore," to come in 1977, which will commemorate the Battle of Saratoga, the three works will be known as "Entente Cordiale," forming a full-evening's light entertainment.

"Union Jack" acknowledges those ritual aspects of Britain as alive today in military ceremony and in theatrical vitality as they were in the 18th century. It utilizes folk, military naval and music-hall themes. The music was selected and arranged by Hershey Kay, scenery and costumes designed by Rouben Ter-Arutunian.

Seventy dancers of the New York City Ballet, the largest number ever to be assembled on the stage at the same time, will dance the hour-long "Union Jack' including the same nine principals of the premiere performance.

These are but two of the ballets which will be performed during the week:Tuesday through Saturday evenings at 8:15 and Thursday and Saturday at 2 p.m.

Dinner and Theatre Duo at Eddyville

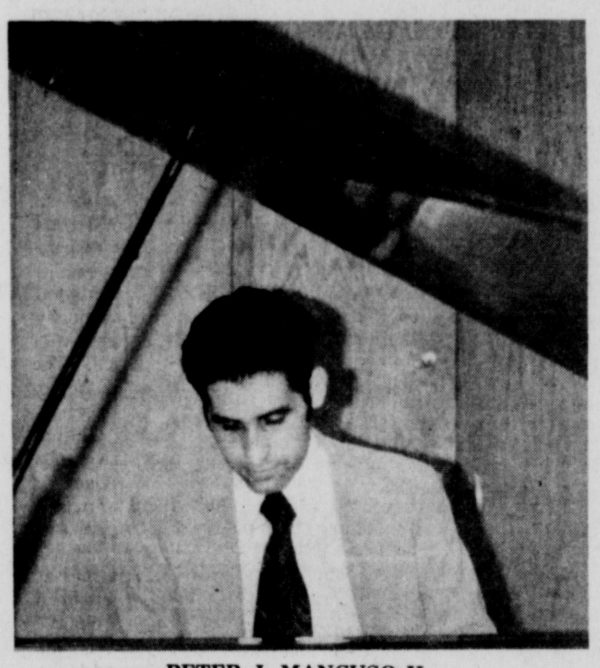
EDDYVILLE—Dock N' Dine, unique seafood and steak restaurant on the banks of the Rondout at Rte.213, Eddyville, is presenting a season of Showboat Theatre for the summer and also announces the arrival of Lennie Stevens as chef.

The famous Driftwood Floating Theatre has moved upstream to the Dock N' Dine cove. Open to the public during the day, the Showboat will present an exciting spectrum of family-oriented theatre presentations during the evenings.

Luncheons and dinners are served at the restaurant. Chef Lennie Stevens, recently of Marcel's in West Park, will offer specialities of the house on a regular basis and has made clam chowder the standard fixture along with the live lobster tank.

For boating guests, Dock N' Dine offers docking at its recently expanded facilities. Any style of craft can be housed overnight. For automobiles there is an immense parking lot.



PETER J. MANCUSO II

Pianist Peter Mancuso 11 Will Perform at Boston

KINGSTON—Area pianist Peter J. Mancuso II will perform a graduate piano recital at Boston University School for the Arts July 30, 7 p.m. The recital will be the first of two recitals presented in partial fulfillment of the requirements for the degree of Master of Music in piano performance.

Featured repertoire for the July recital will be the Partita No. 2 in C minor by J. S. Bach; Sonata in E, Op. 109 by Beethoven; three preludes by Debussy, and the Sonata in G Minor, Op. 22 by Schumann.

A student of Dr. Edgar Roberts of Kingston, Mancuso has performed for the International Bach Society this past March at the Lincon Center for the Performing Arts Library Auditorium, and presented a joint recital this past April at Ulster County Community College with his wife, Pauline, a flutist. He is director of choral activities at Saugerties Junior-Senior High School, and teaches piano privately.

'Chopin Lives' Slated for New Paltz

NEW PALTZ—A blend of theatre and the music of Chopin will be presented at the State UniVersity College at New Paltz July 20 when Robert Guralnik appears in "Chopin Lives" at 8:30 p.m. in McKenna Theatre on campus.

Dressed in elegant 19th century concert clothes and using simple lighting effects, Guralnik portrays Chopin in a dramatic presentation of the composer's music and reminiscents about his times, his music and the relationship to both. What is projected is an intimately revealing portrait of the man.

The production results from Guralnik's feeling, after having appeared in stage productions, that performing musicians had to fine new ways of presenting themselves and music in order to remain viable. With Harold Guskin, a director of the New York University Performing Arts Center, he created "Chopin Lives" in an attempt to wed serious music to the theatre within the framework of the traditional recital.

Guralnik is a New Yorker who studied at the High School of Music and Art and at the Manhattan School of Music. He served for three years with the US Army as the piano soloist with the US Military Academy band at West Point. He was instrumental in establishing a summer dinner-chamber music series with members of the New York Philharmonic, and was one of the founding members of the Portland Summer Concerts in Portland, Ore. He has recorded for the Mace and Serenus labels.

Admission will be $2 for adults, $1 for students, children and senior citizens.

Float-in,Time Capsule Projects Scheduled For High Falls

HIGH FALLS—The next two events scheduled by the High Falls Bicentennial Committee fo- the year's celebration will include a Spirit of '76 Float-In, Sunday, Aug. 22, at 2 p.m. and a Bicentennial Time Capsule Placing Ceremony, Oct. 10.

As the committee's release notes, "The Tall Ships came to New York City... the Great Floats will Come to High Falls..." for the Float-In on the Rondout Creek in the High Falls high rocks area. Floats, rafts, rubber tubes, mattresses, will be the order of the day. Everyone is welcome and reminded to bring picnic lunches and cold drinks.

The Bicentennial Time Capsule project for Oct. 10, 2 p.m.,

requires the effort of all persons in the community. Local citizens are asked to select items which could be placed in the sealed concrete septic tank to be opened in the year 2000. Items should be labeled with names and addresses and any explanation deemed necessary.

These continuing programs are all part of the community celebration of the Bicentennial year. The committee expresses appreciation to all who assisted in making the July 4th festivities so successful and to all who assisted on July 5 in the clean-up of the town.

Brig. Gen. Richard Montgomery reinforced the remnants of Gen. Arnold's volunteers on the St. Lawrence near Montreal when the two commanders decided on Dec. 31, 1775 to storm Quebec with their 900 men, despite the city's 1800 defenders. A blizzard created drifts of six feet as a few men succeeded in scaling the city's walls. Montgomery was killed and Arnold wounded. Arnold's retreating army left behind 100 killed and 300 captured against minimal British casualties. The following July, the British fleet arrived and forced the Americans to give up any attempt at conquering Canada, The World Almanac notes.

What makes the SST 36000 movement so accurate? The balance wheel counts off time by oscillating at a regular rate. For most watches, the rate is 18,000 vibrations per hour. Zodiac was a pioneer in the development of the "fast-beat" movement, using a balance with a count of 36,000 vibrations per hour. The greater the speed, the more accurate the watch. It is also less affected by shocks and position changes to which every watch is constantly exposed.

Area Musicians Are Invited to Join Bard Chamber Music Center

ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON--Chamber music enthusiasts in Ulster and surrounding counties are invited to join the Bard Chamber Music Center for amateur string players and pianists in a two-week session of music at Bard College, Annandale-on-Hudson, from July 21 to Aug 8.

The organizing committee for the Center is composed of John Deschere, George Grosberg and Alida Rubin. The programs will consist of informal and non-structured sessions, and although there will be no formal classes of instruction, coaching may be obtained from the staff consisting of Karen Phillips, Paul Wolfe, George Grosberg and John Deschere.

Karen Phillips, director of the center, is the wellknown violist and composer who has performed as soloist in recital and with orchestras and chamber groups throughout the United States, Europe, the Middle East, the Soviet Union and Canada. She also has appeared at numerous music festivals, was awarded a number of prestigious prizes and honors and is considered a gifted mistress of her instrument as well as an important modern composer.

George Grosberg, iolist and violinist and John Deschere, cellist and treasurer of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Orchestra, also will be available for direction and coaching.

Bard College is an appropriate choice of residence for the new group since the college boasts an admirable curriculum in the arts. Its own president, Leon Botstein, is a noteworthy amateur violinist and at one time conducted the White Mountain Music and Arts Festival. Botstein had been invited to conduct the PDQ Bach program which presented in May by the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Orchestra.

Accommodations at Bard College for the participants will be campus style with single and double rooms. Dining will be cafeteria-style with a private dining room for the chamber music residents. Of the six playing rooms in the college, three will have new grand pianos. It is suggested that the players bring their own music.

Her Blow-and-go Coiffure Blew Too Much and Went Too Far

Speaking of my hair . . . you may remember that in the last episode, I opted for the Brillo pad look, which followed the Grace Kelly syndrome (I was blessing children in supermarkets), which came after the wig that got dandruff and died.

Don't get me wrong. I loved the little tight curls close to my head, it's only when they started to grow out that I looked like an aging pepper plant.

That's when I went for the Blow n' Go. In my mind, I saw it as a coiffure with the maintenance of a self-cleaning oven. You just set a few dials, and zip, you were ready for the ball.

This isn't exactly true.

My blow n'go blew too much and went too far.

To begin with you need one of those Dorothy Hamill haircuts, which look terrific but you get this intense urge to ice skate. Secondly, there are two definitions of blow.

There's blow (verb), to send forth a current of air with force, as a wind that blows gently through the chimes.

There's also blow (noun), a sudden unexpected shock, an unfortunate or calamitous happening.

My blow was definitely an unfortunate and calamitous happening. I laundered my hair and borrowed my son's hair dryer.

Without any warning whatsoever, that dryer sucked up my two pitiful strands of hair, nearly pulling my feet off the floor. It was only by a miracle that I was able to kick the plug out of the wall, thus saving my entire face from being devoured by the appliance.

"That dryer nearly killed me," I said to my son.

"You used a dryer for that measly amount of hair? For that you could just hang out of the no-draft in the car. What do they call it?"

"A blow n' go."

"Go where?"

"Any place you want to go."

"You're kidding. You look like a guy I know in the Marine Corps. He's too embarrassed to go anyplace."

When my husband came home he looked at me and said, "What happened to your hair?"

"I blew it," I said.

He shook his head. "I'll say."

Arts, Crafts, Music Planned

LYONSVILLE—The Lyonsville Community Club will sponsor its own unique and varied salute to the American Bicentennial Saturday, July 31, starting at 10 a.m.

Festivities will include arts, crafts, history, music, magic, oratory and food.

A partial schedule of events starts at 10:30 a.m. with a demonstration by the KripplebushLyonsville Fire Co., at 11 a.m. an oration by David Fractenberg; at noon, a magic show by Stephen Sage, at 1 p.m. a hymn sing and at 2 p.m. a cinema photography show.

Simultaneously, outdoor booths and displays will feature a demonstration of the blacksmith's craft by Oscar Christiansen, candlemaking by Sheila Singer; rug hooking and braiding by Mary Hansen; fly tying by Larry Larsen and rushing, caning and quilting by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wedvik. Area artists will be represented by a display of their works. Club members will display antiques including the original Lyonsville school house bell. Refreshments will be available.

Many other features are planned in the clubhouse, the Lyonsville Reformed Church and surrounding grounds on Bone Hollow Road near the intersection with Krumville Road.

Circus Headed For Woodstock

WOODSTOCK—The Woodstock Rotary club will again sponsor the Roberts Brothers Circus at Andy Lee Field in Woodstock, Saturday, July 24. The circus, entirely under the canvas tent, will feature animal acts, acrobats and the ever present clowns. Shows will be held at 2 and 4 p.m. with the possibility of a 6 p.m. show depending on advanced sale.

Tickets may be secured from any Rotarian or at the Watering Troff, Rt. 212, or at Deanies Restaurant in Woodstock. Advanced sale tickets are a bargain: adults, $2; children, $1. Tickets the day of the circus will be adults, $3 and children, $1.75.

UCCC Credit-free Courses Set

STONE RIDGE—Additional credit- free courses have been announced by Ulster County Community College to run for two weeks beginning July 26 to Aug. 6.

Walter Wedvik of Stone Ridge will teach a course in Chair Seat Rushing and Weaving and will be of interest to persons who would like to reclaim an old or not-so-old chair by rushing with paper fibre or "grassing" with Hong Kong (sea) grass.

Joan Turturro of Woodstock will teach Stained Glass Workshop where students will learn the art of making stained glass construction including design, patternmaking, glass cutting, glass entching, leading, soldering and cementing. She has a degree in Fine Arts and is a self-employed glass designer.

Both courses will be held in the morning, 9 to 11. Further information may be obtained by contacting the Office for Continuing Education at the college.

Festival Meeting Tonight

CENTERVILLE—A group of parishoners will meet tonight, 7:30 o'clock, at St. John the Evangelist Parish, Rt. 212, Centerville, to continue with plans for the Bicentennial Summer Festival scheduled for Friday and Saturday evenings, Aug. 27 and 28.

The festival will be held on the church grounds.

The Rev. Msgr. John J. Reardon, pastor, has announced two awards to be made, one of which will be a wheelbarrow containing 300 Bicentennial Silver Dollars.

Talk of the Town

DEAR ABBY

Giving Birth to a Child Doesn't Necessarily Make a Woman a Mother

DEAR ABBY: Six years ago I married a divorced man whose sons came to live with us because their "real" mother thought they would be better off with their father. (They were then 11 and 13.)

I love these boys and think they feel some affection for me, yet on Mother's Day they always remember their biological mother with flowers, and I don't even get a card.

In six years I've done a ton of laundry, mended their clothes, cooked for them, shopped for them and spent hundreds of hours chauffeuring them around. I've nursed them when they were sick and listened to their troubles. I lectured them about sex and drugs, instilling in them decent moral values. I couldn't have done more had they been my biological children.

Their "real" mother has had very little time for them. She never took them on a trip or asked them to spend a holiday with her. (She phones occasionally and makes plans to be with them, but if something better comes along, she cancels.)

I think stepmothers deserve a little recognition on Mother's Day. Just because we didn't bear the children doesn't mean we don't feel like "real" mothers. It would be a kindness to all stepmothers if you would print this.— —HURT ON MOTHER'S DAY

DEAR HURT: I have long held the view that giving birth to a child doesn't make a woman a mother any more than owning a piano makes a person a musician. But the woman who takes a child into her home because she wants to and raises that child with love and understanding is, in every sense of the word, a "real" mother.

DEAR ABBY: I have a severe hearing loss. Six years ago I bought a hearing aid and experimented with it for a long time. I finally gave it up because it magnified background noises I had not heard for years and were more annoying than not hearing at all.

My family criticized me for not wearing my hearing aid, but I've trained myself to read lips and find it much more to my liking.

I do miss a lot at social gatherings as I can listen to only one person at a time, but I've learned to live with that, too. .

Sometimes I feel that I'm better off if I don't hear everything that goes on.—DOING ALL RIGHT

DEAR DOING: Hooray for you! Not everyone who has a hearing loss feels severely handicapped.

DEAR ABBY: We are a young couple expecting our first child in two weeks. Our best friends had their first child (a boy) and they named him the very name we had chosen for our baby! We know they got the idea from us because when we told them the name we liked for a boy, they both agreed it was a great name.

We felt obvious resentment when we found out they used our name.

Our question: The other couple will probably feel obvious resentment now if we name ours what we had planned to, but would we be showing poor taste toward our friends in doing so?—NAMELESS IN OKLAHOMA

DEAR NAMELESS: Go ahead and use the name you like. Surely the world is big enough for two boys with the same name. And there's always the chance that yours will be a girl.

Poetry Winner Named

STONE RIDGE—A poem written by James J. Clarke, an assistant professor of English at Ulster County Community College, has been awarded first prize in the national poetry contest sponsored by the San Diego Branch of the National League of American Pen Women.

The poem, "Hiroshima 1946: a Year Later; a Woman Speaks to the Buddha," earlier received a second place award. It has a setting in Hiroshima a year after the atomic bomb was dropped on the Japanese city.

More than 100 of Professor Clarke's poems have been published including 19 anthologies. He also is the author of a book of his own poems, "Trip Tickets."

A West Hurley resident, Professor Clarke received his BA Degree from Montclair State College. He has taken additional graduate courses in English at New York University.

BICENTENNIAL YEAR EXHIBIT by the 38 artists of the Ulster County Artists Association is on display at the Statewide Savings Bank main office, 267 Wall St., Kingston. Jane Bleavin, president, adjusts one of the paintings. Included in the canvasses are local scenes such as the House on Frog Alley, The Tappen House, old stone Aqueduct Bridge at High Falls circa 1830. The exhibition will run through the Bicentennial month of July. (Freeman photo by Haines)

BICENTENNIAL FACTS

No determination for the location of a permanent seat of the government of the United States was made by Congress until 1790. After long discussion Congress passed an act, approved July 16, 1790 stating "That a district of territory, not exceeding 10 miles square, to be located as hereafter directed on the river Potomac . . . accepted for permanent seat of the government of the United States . . . " The World Almanac notes that the federal government was transferred to the District of Columbia on the first Monday of December, 1800.

Long Distance

The first known system for delivering water to cities was built by the Phoenicians. The Greeks copied the system of digging tunnels to bring water to their cities, and the Romans developed it with aquaducts 50 to 100 feet high that brought water to Rome from more than 60 miles away.

CITY OF KINGSTON
NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, that the Common Council of the City of Kingston will, in accordance with the provisions of Section 507(2)(d) of the General Municipal Law of the State of New York, as amended, hold a public hearing on August 3, 1976, at 7:00 P.M., at the Common Council Chambers, City Hall, Kingston, New York, to consider the approval of a proposed disposition of Disposition Parcel 7 and the existing structure thereon (hereinafter collectively referred to as the "Property") in the Uptown Renewal Project, NY R-121 to Frank H. Reis, residing at 78 Plymouth Avenue, Kingston, New York. The Property is also known as 79-85 North Front Street, Kingston, New York.

Disposition Parcel 7 is to be used for retail commercial purposes in accordance with the Urban Renewal Plan for the Project. Frank H. Reis contemplates the restoration of the 1-story concrete block structure on Disposition Parcel 7.

Disposition Parcel 7 is a parcel of approximately 17,528.896 square feet in area generally located between Disposition Parcel 6 to the north, lands of the City of Kingston (Parking Lot) to the east, and North Front Street to the south, and is more fully described as follows:

Beginning at a point on the Northerly street line of North Front Street, said point of beginning being the Southwesterly corner of lands of the City of Kingston Parking Lot and the Southeasterly corner of the herein described premises and running:

(1) thence from said point of beginning along the Northerly street line of North Front Street South 86° 18' 35" West, 108.00 feet to a point;

(2) thence along the Easterly line of lands now or formerly of the Kingston Urban Renewal Agency (Disposition Parcel No. 7-A) North 1° 43' 25" West, 175.28 feet to an iron pipe;

(3) thence along other lands now or formerly of the Kingston Urban Renewal Agency (Disposition Parcel No. 6) the following courses and distances: North 82° 51' 05" East, 29.81 feet to a point;

(4) thence North 79° 08' 35" East, 52.85 feet to a point;

(5) thence along the Westerly line of lands of the City of Kingston Parking Lot, the following courses and distances: South 12° 17' 25" East, 109.00 feet to a point;

(6) thence South 10° 56' 25" East, 27.00 feet to a point;

(7) thence South 3° 47' 25" East, 49.00 feet to the place of beginning.

Frank H. Reis has previously been found by the Kingston Urban Renewal Agency to be qualified and financially responsible to purchase and restore the Property. The Kingston Urban Renewal Agency has, in accordance with its established rules and procedures duly designated Frank H. Reis as a qualified and eligible redeveloper of the Property, and the Common Council of the City of Kingston has approved Frank H. Reis as a qualified and eligible redeveloper.

The price to be paid by Frank H. Reis for the Property is $30,000.00.

The essential terms of the Disposition Agreement to be executed by and between the Kingston Urban Renewal Agency and Frank H. Reis are that Frank H. Reis is to deliver to the Kingston Urban Renewal Agency prior to or simultaneously with the execution of the Disposition Agreement a good faith deposit of $3,000.00 as security for the performance of his obligations under the Disposition Agreement; to pay $30,000.00 simultaneously with the delivery of xthe DeeJ; to submit Restoration Plans for the restoration of the Property with thirty (30) days from the date of the Disposition Agreement; to submit satisfactory evidence of equity capital and commitments for mortgage financing necessary for the restoration of the Property within thirty (30) days after the date of approval of the Restoration Plans; to take title to the Porperty within sixty (60) days after the date of approval of the Restoration Plans, or on September 1, 1976, whichever date is later; to commence restoration of the Property within thirty (30) days after the date of the Deed; and to complete restoration within four (4) months after the date of the Deed.

The Kingston Urban Renewal Agency proposes to enter into the Disposition Agreement with Frank H. Reis on or after August 3, 1976.

The Disposition Agreement will ber available for public examination at the office of the Kingston Urban Renewal Agency, 436 Broadway, Kingston, New York for a period of ten (10) days, commencing July 19, 1976 and terminating August 3, 1976, between the hours of 9:00 A.M. and 4:00 P.M., Monday through Friday.

The Uptown Renewal Project, NY R-121 is generally located between Esopus Creek and the New York Central Railroad (Mountain Division) to the north, Lucas Avenue and John Street to the south, and Joy's Lane to the west, in the City of Kingston.

Randall's Third Invitational Victory in Four Years

Leon Adds Another Wiltwyck Title

By STEVE KANE
Freeman Staff

KINGSTON — At the Wiltwyck Golf Club, there is a standard line that gets delivered to the opponents of Leon Randall. It goes, "Don't worry, Bob, Ralph, Bill, whoever, all it takes to beat him is pars and birdies."

Dave Blakely didn't have the pars and birdies in numbers sufficient enough to stop Randall from successfully defending his Wiltwyck Invitational title Sunday, so for the third time in four years Blakely became the runnerup after Randall scored a 3 and 2 victory in the championship finals.

Blakely turned back Rick Barthel's challenge in the morning semifinals, 3 and 2. Randall, meanwhile, annihilated Ed Lawrence in the other semi, 7 and 6.

The two winners then paired off to reenact the show they have given here unbroken since 1973. In the past, however, their struggle has been closer. Randall won the opening hole when Blakely started badly with a double bogey, and Big Dave never caught up.

A hitter of prodigious tee shots, Blakely drove into a pond to lose the 15th hole and fall three holes behind. Randall then scrambled for a par and a half on the 16th to close out the match.

Randall was customarily nonchalant about the latest addition to his trophy case.

"We were pretty sloppy," was his evaluation of the championship finals. Sloppy being in Randall's case twoover-par for the 16 holes of their match.

"Dave has been tougher," he continued. "He usually holes more putts, and his driving today wasn't that good."

Still, Randall admitted the championship was his most difficult match of the tournament. "I scored pretty well all weekend," he said.

Specifically, he began the tourney with a 74 in the qualifying round, eliminated highly regarded Ralph DeStefano in the first round with a three-under-par performance, was just one-over while beating John Durcan, and matched par to defeat Lawrence.

While Blakely snapped off a few too many hooks, Randall made the turn two holes up. He helped himself out with three early birdies, one via a magnificent second shot on the second hole, another with a 35-foot snake on the eighth hole.

Both players felt the turning point came on 11. After each put their drives in a trap on the short par three, Randall bogied and still won the hole.

"That was my first double bogey there in two years," said Blakely afterwards. "That really hurt because I'd just won nine and ten."

It also hurt because Randall doesn't give his opponents too many opportunities. "They say the difference between a pro and an amateur is that an amateur makes mistakes," Blakely said. "Well, Leon doesn't make very many mistakes. You can't let him get the tees. You've got to get in and win one and get him behind you."

That fact that the same men were again in the finals was no surprise. Randall is the favorite whereever he goes, and Blakely is a bear at match play. Blakely saw another reason.

"I've had the luck of the draw for four years to be in a different bracket. I know if I'm in the finals, he'll be there too."

Neither semifinal match was close. Lawrence fell apart against Randall and lasted only 12 holes. Barthel, given a good chance for a berth in the finals, lost his touch at short range and finally succumbed on the 15th.

In other results, Gary Lewis went away with first flight honors after soundly trouncing George Pacheco, 5 and 4. In the second flight, Rick Bates defeated Kurt Swenson, in the third Frank Holcomb prevailed over Paul Barlow, in the fourth Bob Finn beat John Hall, and in the fifth Dan Potter turned back Norm Serinsky.

After his opening defeat to Randall, DeStefano battled back through the beaten eight of the championship flight to take a consolation prize with a 4 and 3 victory over John Boeheim.

CHIP SHOTS...Blakely drove poorly for seven holes until a tip helped straighten him out. "Leon told me what I was doing wrong"...Host pro Harvey Bostic illustrated Blakely's power with story: "We were on the seventh fairway (a par five), and he had a six iron. I said, 'Why don't you go for the green?' He said, 'I am.'...Boeheim, a newcomer to the tourney, impressed people with his swing. He is the head basketball coach at Syracuse University

Americans Off to Fast Start

MONTREAL (UPI) — His bald head beaming under the bright, artificial lights, swimmer Mike Bruner sounded the rallying cry for the United States.

"We're the best," he screamed. "Hey, hey, USA, all the way. This is the greatest thing that could have happened to us. We're gonna get everyone psyched and get more medals than anyone gave us credit for."

It was that kind of day for the Americans when politics almost gave way to sports, and matching each of their heroic deeds with words to match, the United States has gotten off to a running, boastful start in the Olympic Games.

The first day of activity began for the U.S. with a devastating 106-86 victory over European champion Italy in basketball, which immediately brought words of concession from every rival coach except Russia's.

Then, in the space of 15 minutes during the evening, the Yanks reasserted their claim to world supremacy in swimming by setting two world records and earning three medals. And the sky-high Bruner, anticipating a telephone call from President Ford for being the first American gold medal winner, proclaimed, "We have a chance to get every gold in every men's event. The whole thing just freaked me out."

Bruner, who had his head shaved six hours before his race, led a U.S. sweep in the 200-meter butterfly with his world record time of one minute, 59.23 seconds. This came just 15 minutes after 6-6 John Naber, with a full head of blond hair, set a world mark of 56.19 seconds in qualifying for tonight's finals of the 100-meter backstroke.

Before he got dressed, Naber watched the award ceremony for Bruner, silver medalist Steve Gregg and bronze medalist Bill Forrester, and then yelled to a friend, "Hey, go ask Bruner if that made the hair stand up on his head."

For his own accomplishment, the outgoing Naber said, "I feel really good, but I'm not fooling myself. I haven't won a gold medal yet. The record will go tomorrow (Monday) night."

The swimming successes also included a silver medal for the women's 400-meter relay team, and a perfect 6-for-6 advance by Americans into two final events tonight, the men's 100-meter backstroke and the women's 100-meter freestyle.

"This was a super start for us," said Jack Nelson, coach of the women's team. "After the poor start we had in 1972 (at Munich), I'm really very happy our girls have done as well as they have."

There were only two finals on the opening night swimming program, and both resulted in world records. Shortly after Bruner set his, the powerful East German women broke their own mark for the 400-meter medley relay by more than six seconds in 4:07.95.

It was the first of what could be a bumper crop of gold medals for 17-year-old Kornelia Ender, and the lithsome blonde is favored to pick up her second in tonight's 100-meter freestyle. This race also could be the occasion for another blonde, Shirley Babashoff, to earn her second medal in as many nights after she received a silver in the medley relay.

The other swimming finals tonight are the men's 100-meter backstroke, in which Naber is favored over East Germany's Roland Matthes, Ender's fiance and the former world record holder; the women's 200-meter butterfly, which should go to East Germany; and the men's 200-meter freestyle, where the U.S. could accomplish another 1-2-3 sweep with Naber, Steve Furniss and Jim Montgomery.

In addition to the four in swimming, there were three other gold medal events scheduled for today, two in shooting and one in weightlifting.

Although the U.S. has played only one game in basketball, the concessions came trickling in following the awesome destruction of Italy, which beat defending Olympic champion Russia three weeks ago and was considered to have a good chance for a medal.

"I think only one team here has a shot at the gold medal," commented Yugoslavian Coach Mirko Novosel, "and that team is the United States. I have not seen the USA team, but I have seen their players and that is enough for me."

Added Canadian Coach Jack Donohue, who was Kareem Abdul-Jabbar's high school coach in New York, "They are so intimidating. That was the most aggressive I've ever seen them play. They forced the play on Italy. They scare you."

All but one of the 12 players on the U.S. roster scored, with Adrian Dantley notching 20 points, Mitch Kupchak 19 and Scott May 16. The Americans, who next play Puerto Rico Tuesday, led by as many as 30 points.

There were three other gold medals awarded Sunday. East Germany gained a second gold as Uwe Potteck set a world shooting record with 573 of a possible 600 points, and the Russians also picked up a pair of golds. They won the 100kilometer cycling race in 2 hours, 8 minutes and 53 seconds and Alexander Voronin equaled his own combined total world record of 533-½ pounds to win the flyweight title in weightlifting.

The latest scoreboard count on the political front had 19 countries either failing to appear or else boycotting the Games over the presence here of New Zealand, whose rugby team currently is touring South Africa.

Marz Tosses No-Hitter As Braves Crush Crusaders

KINGSTON — Bob Marz hurled a no-hitter Sunday night as the Kingston Braves belted the Monroe-Woodbury Crusaders, 11-1, in a Hudson Valley Rookie League baseball game at Dietz Stadium.

Marz struck out seven and walked four in throwing his gem. The only blemish on it was a first inning Crusader run on a walk, a hit batsman and an error.

After that initial setback, Marz and his Braves mates were in complete control as the locals ralled for five runs in the fourth, two in the fifth and four more in the sixth to make the game a runaway.

Tom Gallo sparked the Kingston attack with three hits and three runs batted in. Steve Hughes doubled and singled twice and Tim Cole provided a three-run triple.

A bases loaded single by Gallo scored two runs in the fourth and put Kingston ahead for good. Singles by Hughes and Gerry Hawkins brought in three more runs in the frame.

Gallo singled in another run in the fifth and yet another crossed the plate on an error. Cole's bases loaded triple and an RBI single by Karl Lezette closed the books in the sixth.

Monroe-Woodbury's closest bid at a hit came in the sixth when Ken Walsh smashed one off Marz. Shorstop Nick Malgieri charged in, recovered the ball, and threw the runner out.

The win upped Kingston's second round record to 5-0. The Braves are 16-1 overall. They'll host Wappingers Falls Wednesday at 8 p.m. at Dietz.

David Graham Refused to Fold

HARRISON (UPI) — David Graham was supposed to fold.

He was expected to shrivel up and collapse in front of a national television audience while the golfing "Goliaths" like Johnny Miller, Tom Watson and Ben Crenshaw stomped him into the ground down the stretch and divided the loot.

After all, who was David Graham anyway? And what business did he have leading the $300,000 Westchester Classic for three rounds?

Well, David Graham, who had won only one tournament on the PGA circuit in six years, showed them all Sunday that when it came down to "nitty gritty" time he could handle the pressure better than any of them.

Using his putter as a slingshot, little David slew the big Goliaths in the final round of the tournament by finishing with a 12-under-par 272 to win by three strokes and take home the biggest paycheck of his career, $60,000.

Graham's final round of even par 71 was his worst of the four-day tournament, but it was all he needed because the guys who were supposed to make a run at him never got going.

Miller, the British Open champion whom many thought would apply the most pressure, played himself out of contention on the front nine while Crenshaw didn't make his move until it was too late.

Watson shot a good last round, a 66, but middle rounds of 72 and 73 killed his chances.

As the big names faded in the distance, it became apparent that the only way Graham could lose was to blow it himself. And that wasn't to be because Graham had told himself that he was as good as anyone out there, so why not prove it?

"Last night I thought about the tension," the 30-year-old Aussie admitted. "I said to myself 'Why should I feel tension? Why should I feel nervous? Why should I feel scared?'

"I said to myself 'You're doing what you're supposed to be doing.' I said 'you came to play golf just like everyone else. You came with as good a chance as anybody. So why should you be apprehensive?'"

Rather than play cautiously, Graham attacked the course early and it paid off with birdies on the fourth and fifth holes. He bogeyed the sixth and eighth holes to finish the front nine in even-par 36, but he knew that if he matched par the rest of the way he would be hard to catch.

"I didn't know if I could get (the lead) into the clubhouse but nobody really made a run at me. I thought if I could get through 11 and 12 I'd be able to finish all right. Fortunately it was windy again today and that kept the scores down," said Graham.

As it turned out, the most serious challenges to Graham were made by two other relative unknowns, Mike Wynn and Fuzzy Zoeller.

Wynn, who said he would quit the circuit after this year unless he could break even financially, began the day four strokes behind and reduced that margin to two midway through the final round. But he couldn't handle the pressure on the back side and bogeyed four of the last seven holes.

Zoeller also closed to within two strokes of Graham by posting three straight birdies on the front nine, but he played the second side in only even par and saw his chances evaporate on the 16th hole when he took a bogey four.

Graham admitted he might have benefitted from the fact there were no scoreboards around to remind him who was breathing down his neck.

"There were no scoreboards from 10 to 14 and maybe that was a blessing in disguise," said Graham. "I didn't know what the situation was with the other guys. When I got to 14 I looked at the scoreboard for the first time all day and found out I was far in front. It gave me four shots to play with. I felt I could even make a double bogey. I could afford one bad shot, maybe even two."

The only sign of nervousness Graham displayed came on the 17th green when he three-putted from 15 feet for a bogey four. By then the tournament was safely tucked away, however, and he finished with a par on the final hole.

It was then that he could relax for the first time.

"I'm a very intense player, not happy-go-lucky," he said. "I don't have the super talent of the great players. I can't relax.

Youth Tops Experience

By SAM PILLSBURY
Freeman Staff

Youth (Dent) won, 6-7, 6-2, 6-3.

The Stolle-Dent singles contest kept a crowd of nearly 300 entertained with both excellent tennis and some off-the-cuff comedy.

The veteran Stolle, who in his long career has helped Australia to a number of Davis Cup victories and was a finalist at Wimbledon three years running, squeaked by fellow Aussie Dent in the first set in a tiebreaker. Dent's quickness seemed no match for Stolle's finesse as the latter displayed his full repetoire of dinks, lobs and even a between-the-legs get.

Dent, who won the French and Australian Junior singles championshiop in 1968, lost his first three serves of the match, but found the touch again in the second and blasted by Stolle, 6-2. Stolle battled back in the third, but could not hold serve against Dent's strong returns and went down 6-3.

Both Stolle and Dent enjoyed themselves on the court, throwing comments back and forth to themselves as well as to the linesmen who issued a number of questionable calls. Remembering his coaching role, Stolle commented to Dent after he had ripped a backhand down the line by him,"I've been trying to get you to play that way all bloody season!"

The previous game, Dent had complained after a long rally in which Stolle sent him gamboling all over the court only to lose the point, "You know I won't be able to play tomorrow night now."

Comments not withstanding, both Stolle and Dent returned after singles to play with local performers Peter Boyd and Lloyd Emmanuel in a somewhat lsss rousing set of doubles. In that contest, Emmanuel's serve appeared to provide the edge as the Stolle-Emmanuel duo triumphed 10-5.

Oil Burner Paces MR-OTB Field

MONTICELLO—Ben Webster turned on Oil Burner's afterburner Sunday at Monticello Raceway for a jet-propelled 1:58 4/5 mile to lead the field of 10 qualifiers for the July 25the $300,000 Monticello-OTB Classic.

The Most Happy Fella colt won his division by two lengths over Crafty Rival and Fulla Spark. Fourth place finisher Scuba Diver also qualified with a 1:59 4/5.

In another elimination race, Wolf Pack came on to nip Mandate at the wire by a half-length in 1:59 3/5 with Atashy third also qualifying.

The third division saw Del Cameron find racing rooom along the rail to squeeze by Speedy Romeo for a length win in 2:00 flat. Third, also qualifying , was Joe O'Brien's colt Armbro Roger.

Post positions for the richest single harness racing event, the so-called Race for the Gold, were to be determined in a drawing at here today.

Oil Burner's performance for owner William Brooks of Wilmington, Del., was impressive. Webster had Oil Burner to the half in .59 3/5 after outduelling Bill Haughton's Boehm's Eagle, building a comfortable length and a half lead as he whizzead by the three-quarters in 1:28 4/5. A late charge over the second half squeezed Crafty Rival, Fulla Spark and Scuba Diver into the finals.

Haughton got the double-gaited Speedy Romeo to the front in a :59 3/5 half in his division and seemed to tire in the stretch while Del Cameron found room on the inside to pass him for a victory with Precious Fella. Joe O'Brien had a late charge to the wire with Armbro Roger to move into the finalae with his third place finish.

Wolf Pack, the early line favorite for the Classic II, had a tough time putting away Mandate in 1:59 3/5. They exchangead the lead to the half in .58 3/5 with Merrit Dokey getting Mandate to the front. In the stretch Eldon Harner shook up Wolf Pack from third and rushed to tthe wire in front by a half-length. Del Insko made a game rush from fifth at the half to get Atashy into third and qualifying position.

The Sunday matinee crowd of 7,189 saw Ben Webster score a double, taking the featured $8500 pacing handicap with Currituck Star in 2:01, two lengths in front of Italian Barmin and Gypsy Bret, paying $4.00, $2.80 and $2.40.

Six Unbeatens in Soccer

Falcons Down Ions

WAPPINGERS FALLS — Roger Plantier, making his first start since suffering a broken collarbone last spring at Albany State University, hurled a complete game Sunday as the New Paltz Falcons trimmed the Wappingers Ions, 7-3, in a Hudson Valley Rookie League baseball game.

NP, in evening its record at 9-9, got a homer and a double from Bill Schiller; two singles and two runs batted in from Greg Garcia; a homer from Mike Freer; and an RBI double from Rick Pesavento.

Plantier fanned two and scattered 10 hits.

The Falcons are at Marlboro on Wednesday.

Rankin (Who Else?) Wins LPGA Borden Tourney

DUBLIN, Ohio (UPI) — Ho hum, Judy Rankin has won another golf tournament.

"I'm very happy about it," said Rankin after sewing up her fifth victory of the year Sunday, the $70,000 Borden Classic, "but I'm losing some of the elation. It's becoming a business. I'm still thrilled, but it comes out different."

Rankin, the first member of the Ladies Professional Golf Association to win $100,000 in one year, shot a five-under-par 67 on the 6,250-yard Riviera Country Club course Sunday for a 54-hole score of 205, 11 shots under par. That was good for a five-stroke margin over runnersup Hollis Stacy and Pat Bradley.

The 31-year-old Texan, who pocketed another $10,000 for the win, had started the day in a tie with Stacy, but ran off three straight birdies on the second, third and fourth holes and it was, for the most part, all over.

"I had a pretty good lead most of the day," said Rankin, "but I never did feel real good until there were only a couple of holes to play. There are so many good players out there."

District 16 LL Opens

KINGSTON — The District 16 Little League Tournament gets underway tonight with three games on tap in the boys division.

In opening night action, the Americans play the Nationals at Esopus; Jaycees take on Ulster at Kingston National; and Ellenville meet Onteora at Rondout Valley.

The boys championship game will be played Saturday.

The girls softball tournament opens Tuesday, with that title match also set for Saturday.

The New York State Championship for Little League girls softball will also be held here this year at the American Little League field. The girls Eastern Regionals will be played after that at Rondout Valley. The regional winner will go to the World Championships in Portland, Ore.

Round Robin Begins July 28

KINGSTON — The Round Robin Little League Tournament will begin July 28 with teams from eight area leagues squaring off in first round contests.

In first round pairings, it will be the National League against the American League, Esopus versus Ulster, Hurley versus the Jaycee loop and Rondout Valley against the Indian Little League.

Semifinals will be played on July 30, and the championship game will be played August 2 at the American Little League field.

All collections this year will be donated to the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Indians Capture Ulster LL Playoff

KINGSTON — The Indians solved the three-way tie for first place in the second half pennant race in the Town of Ulster Little League by whipping both their challengers.

The Mets fell first by a 10-5 count, then the Indians bombed the Yankees, 20-3.

Jim Childs stopped the Mets on eight hits while his team scored its total on only five safeties. Against the Yanks, the Scully boys, Bill and Pete, led the way as Bill slammed three doubles and drove in five runs, and Pete cracked three hits good for three RBIs.

Johncock Cops Michigan Race

CAMBRIDGE JUNCTION, Mich. (UPI) — Gordon Johncock, coaxing all the fuel his tanks could muster through the final laps, captured the championship car portion of the Michigan Twin 200 Sunday at Michigan International Speedway.

A. J. Foyt took the second 200-lap race for stock cars.

In the first race, Johncock, the track's one-lap record holder who had not won on the two-mile oval, held off Indianapolis 500 winner Johnny Rutherford to register his first victory in the USAC Indy car season after two seconds and a pair of thirds.

Foyt finished third in that race, followed by Roger McCluskey and Johnny Parsons.

Miss Guthrie, who set a closed-course speed record for women in qualifying Saturday at 186.480 miles per hour, ran steadily all day but was hampered by an unscheduled pit stop to change a flat tire. She finished 13th, seven laps behind Johncock.

Johncock's fuel problem came on his last pit stop, when a coupling malfunctioned on the refueling gear and the tank on his Wildcat-Offy wasn't filled.

However, he was aided by a yellow flag when Larry Cannon spun seven laps before the finish. Johncock then was able to hang on for the victory.

Fuel problems also spoiled the chances of Foyt and Pocono 500 champion Al Unser, who made strong showings early.

Foyt, starting on the pole, threatened to make a runaway of the event in the first third of the race before running out of fuel on the back stretch on the 33rd lap.

Unser, who took the lead just past the midway mark, also ran out of fuel while leading at the 74-lap mark. Johncock then got the lead.

'76 Audis for $1000 less than Volvos and BMWs
(even Saabs and Peugeots, for that matter).

No tricks. No word games. You can actually get our least expensive Audi for about $1000 less than the least expensive Volvo, BMW, Saab or Peugeot.

And not only will you be spending less, but you'll be getting more.

More miles per gallon than any of them: 37 on the highway and 24 in the city for our standard shift model, based on the latest EPA estimates. (Mileage can vary, of course, depending on the car's condition, optional equipment, as well as the way you drive.)

You'll also be getting advanced engineering features, like fuel injection, front-wheel drive, rack-and-pinion steering, dual diagonal brakes and torsion crank rear axle.

Better hurry, though. When you offer so much car for so little money, they don't stay around so long.

It Took Rangers' Rabbit a Night to Work

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) — The Texas Rangers needed a little luck Sunday night, so they went out and got themselves the biggest rabbit's foot they could find—a live one, no less.

The rabbit, named "Streak" by the players, looked on from the dugout as Steve Hargan pitched 12 innings and totaled a career high 10 strikeouts while Juan Beniquez scored the tying run in the ninth inning and drove home the winning run with a single in the 12th.

The result was a 3-2 victory over the New York Yankees to halt a 10-game losing streak and prevent the Rangers from falling into third place in the American League West.

Texas is 10½ games behind first-place Kansas City and only one percentage point ahead of the surging Oakland A's.

"We had a meeting the other day," Hargan said. "Brad Corbett (Ranger majority owner) wanted to know what he could do to help us.

"He went around the room and talked to everyone. When he got to Lenny (Randle) Lenny said he'd like to have a great, big, black rabbit's foot.

"Gaylord (Perry, Ranger pitcher) went out and got this big, black rabbit over the weekend and left it in Lenny's locker."

The rabbit didn't help Saturday night as the Rangers lost their 10th straight to New York 7-5. When Hargan came to the clubhouse for Sunday's game, the rabbit was in his locker.

"I told Lenny if we didn't win, I was going to stick that rabbit, feet, eyeballs and all, in my micro-wave oven and see what happened," Hargan said with a laugh.

Fortunately, the rabbit's good health was secured after the Ranger's fought back from a 2-0 New York lead with runs in the fourth, ninth and 12th innings.

Texas tied it in the ninth when Randle singled Beniquez home. In the 12th, Jim Sundberg walked, reached second on Tom Grieve's sacrifice fly and scored with two outs on Beniquez' single.

George Brett doesn't mind keeping an open mind and that's the reason why he doesn't get cheated very often.

Brett kept a clean slate upstairs and belted a two-run homer in the seventh inning while Marty Pattin and Steve Mingori tossed a combined seven-hitter Sunday to lead the Kansas City Royals to a 6-3 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

The American League's leading hitter with a spiralling .365 average, Brett says he's much improved despite lacking a master plan.

"I have to go up there with an open frame of mind. What happens if I go up there thinking that I'm going to hit a home run and they pitch me outside?" Brett asked. "I'm not going to start thinking home runs, either, because that would just mess me up."

The Royals touched Boston starter and loser Reggie Cleveland for a second-inning run, scored three more runs in the fourth and finished by roughing up Boston reliever Bill Lee.

Lee, who injured his pitching arm in a fracas with New York's Graig Nettles earlier this year, made his second appearance since that accident and retired eight batters before walking Amos Otis in the eighth. The mistake proved costly when Brett followed with his sixth homer.

It marked the second day in a row that Brett had beaten the defending American League champion Red Sox. On Saturday he stroked a ninth-inning homer to give Royals a victory. In meetings between the two clubs this season, Kansas City has now beaten Boston seven out of eight times.

In other American League games, California downed Baltimore 8-6, Cleveland beat Minnesota 6-1, Chicago pummelled Milwaukee 13-3 and Oakland ripped Detroit 10-1.

A's 10, Tigers 1

Oakland ran the Tigers into the ground as they pilfered four bases and pulled off two double steals after running up nine stolen bases in three previous games. Sal Bando broke and 0-for-16 streak by driving in three runs with a fifth-inning double and two-run, sixth-inning single.

White Sox 13, Brewers 3

Chicago rapped out a season-high 16 hits, highlighted by Lamar Johnson's first two home runs of the season, good for four runs. Kevin Bell and Bill Stein each stroked three-run homers. Milwaukee's All-Star pitcher Bill Travers went 1 2-3 innings and was slapped around for seven hits and seven earned runs before departing.

Indians 6, Twins 1

Cleveland's Rico Carty blasted a pair of two-run homers and rookie Stan Thomas, primarily a relief pitcher, allowed Minnesota eight hits to hike his record to 2-1.

Orioles 8, Angels 6

Recently acquired Tony Solaita hit his first homer of the year and also drove in two runs with a first-inning single to pace Baltimore's victory over California.

Kong Makes an Exception

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dave Kingman, who doesn't like to talk about home runs, made an exception for No. 32 Sunday and Mickey Lolich got by with a sagging fastball to give the New York Mets a 2-0 over the Atlanta Braves.

"I had no velocity at all on the ball in the bullpen but I kept the ball down all day," Lolich said after hurling a two-hitter and his 41st career shutout. "I couldn't throw very hard but the ball was sinking so I didn't worry about throwing it hard. About 90 of the 107 pitches were fastballs.

Lolich, who has pitched better than his 5-10 record would indicate, said he was surprised at his performance after the All-Star Game layoff. "It's the first time I've pitched in eight days," he said. "I'm usually at my best every three or four days."

Kingman's towering shot in the fourth inning gave him 32 in 92 games and put him ahead of Babe Ruth's pace but left him four behind Roger Maris and his asterisk.

The interest in his home run production, Kingman said, is "good for baseball and creates a lot of enthusiasm. Everything I have I owe to baseball and I'm just trying to contribute to the team and to the game in every way I can."

Referring to the last New York stars who made a run at Ruth's record, Kingman added, "I don't really recall (Mickey) Mantle and Maris in '61. I was in grade school on the other coast. It's the other side of the world."

Ruth didn't hit his 32nd until the 95th game but Maris had poled 36 by game No. 92.

Lolich retired 16 batters in a row after Jimmy Wynn singled with one out in the fourth before Rod Gilbreath reached base on Mike Phillips' error with two out in the ninth inning. Lolich fanned four, allowed two singles and walked none in improving his record to 5-10. Darryl Chaney singled in the third with one out for the only other Atlanta hit.

The Mets had taken a 1-0 lead in the third when Roy Staiger led off with a single, went to second on a sacrifice by Lolich and scored on Felix Millan's two-out triple to left.

The Philadelphia Phillies are not only winning by doing things right, they are also winning by doing things differently.

The Phillies edged Los Angeles 2-1 Sunday on a controversial play that had Dodger first baseman Steve Garvey still steaming in the clubhouse.

Mike Schmidt scored the winning run from third base with two outs in the ninth inning on an unusual play in which teammate Jerry Martin was trapped in a run down between first and second base.

The bizzare rally began when Schmidt was hit by a pitch by loser Charlie Hough, 7-4. Greg Luzinski followed with a single, sending Schmidt to third. Martin came in to run for Luzinski before Tommy Hutton grounded to Garvey, who tagged first and began to run Martin toward second. Schmidt broke for the plate while Garvey was trying to tag Martin, who evaded the tag and returned to first safely as Schmidt scored. Garvey protested in vain that Martin had run out of the baseline.

"I still think he was out of the baseline," said Garvey. "When he went out he went out at least three or four feet, and the rules say you can't go more than three feet out".

In other games Cincinnati outslugged Pittsburgh 9-8, San Diego shaded Chicago 2-1, San Francisco edged St. Louis 5-4 before losing 5-4 in 10 innings, and Houston swept a doubleheader from Montreal, 7-6 in 10 innings and 14-1.

Reds 9, Pirates 8

Pinch-hitter Mike Lum's two-run triple keyed a six-run fifth inning outburst as the Reds edged Pittsburgh.

Padres 2, Cubs 1

Rookie Jerry Turner looped a two-out ninth inning single into short leftfield to score pinch-runner Bob Davis from second base to lead the Padres over Chicago.

Parsons Scores At Nashville

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Benny Parsons increased his season winnings to $136,560 Saturday night with a first place finish in the Nashville 420 stock car race.

Parsons took the lead for keeps on the 330th lap when Buddy Baker dropped out because of car trouble.

"I really felt sorry for Buddy," Parsons said. "I know just how he felt. He ran an awfully good race and was still running hard when he went out. I don't know if I could have caught him or not."

Parsons, driving a Chevrolet, picked up $6,615. Richard Petty finished second in his Dodge, followed by Darrell Waltrip.

Jean Adams TEEN FORUM

By Jean Adams, Phd.

SHE SAID NO: (Comment) So often girls comment about guys wanting sex as soon as a relationship begins. I'll confess, some guys do want it right away. I did. That is, until I met Vikki.

We had been going together only a short time when I started trying to pull a fast one off on her. Well, she really put me in my place, and I've never been so glad.

I'm glad to say our respect for each other is still strong, even though we don't go together any longer. I think if a few more girls could speak up and tell the guys how they feel, the guys would cooperate. It is more mature to talk things out. —A Listening Guy in Pennsylvania.

(A.) I don't get many letters from "listening guys" so I'm happy to have yours. I am confident that there are many more boys who feel as you do and who will be reassured by your "confession." Also, what you say should be a help to many girls in deciding the right thing to do.

HAIR: (Comment) You keep the faith with the teen-agers by sympathizing with them, by nudging some along, and by giving timely caution. Good work!

Wish you would print something they might notice (NOT MY LETTER) and heed about doing their grooming ritual on public transportation. They whip out the brush and begin to brush out the dandruff and loose hair all over the poor riders, who have to sit by and get it in the face and lap.

Some of the girls have 24-inch-long hair and the brushing goes on for 20 minutes. Please draft your own letter. They will perhaps notice something from you. —Mature Female in Texas.

(A.) You say some things that badly need saying. And you say them every bit as expertly as I could. So I am using your letter but not your name. Thank you for writing. Flowing-haired girls should correct such thoughtlessness. This goes in restaurants, too. It ruins my appeite to see someone brushing away near my food.

(Write to Dr. Jean Adams, care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas,77001. Every letter is read, but because of the great number received Dr. Adams cannot send personal replies. )

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

TUESDAY, JULY 20

Your birthday today: Creative forces at work in your life this year take you onto a different course than the one you've been following. Relationships at best are rigorously tested in choppy going, according to changing needs and what you invest. Prosperity comes naturally as you pursue the most effectivc system. Today's natives act on impulse, seldom explain their thoughts. The idealists break with tradition to build new order.

Aries (March 21-April 19): You only waste time worrying about the immediate situation, small resources, moody behavior of loved ones. Get busy, work hard on practical details.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): There's a definite break with the past in events and conditions. What you decide now is permanent. Going ahead alone achieves a long-desircd final step.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Temptation to scatter enerqy and cash continues. Be consistent, asking only for what you really want. If you drive, be alert for others' erratic moves.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Seek privacy for meditation since it's essential you do your own thinking. Be thrifty, let speculative ventures alone. Use equipment of all types cautiously.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Your remark is too strong for those who goofed, but whose help you still need. The simpler your plan, the better. Anything elaborate is upset by coincidence.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Even if you are right, don't take drastic action hastily. Everybody is prone to temperament. Give them room to recover. Home life has minor surprises.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Refuse to sign long-term contracts or accept lasting obligations. Incomplete advice comes from people not involved. Missed routine is touqh to do later.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Impulsive dealings stir unwanted side effects. If you're in unfamiliar territory, be wary of appearances. There are reasons for things being as they are.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Rather than spread news, listen! Take note of the source on hearing amazing information. Some changes are in order, but meditate before you move.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Leave the discussion to those who are anxious to argue. A spur-of-the-moment trip is premature: hold off. Put in time on your garden and various hobbies.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Let your actions speak for themselves. Don't explain. Others do exactly as they please: make allowances accordingly, pick your path through crosscurrents.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): It's nice to know that prevailing unpredictable behavior is from natural causes. Overlook baiting. Give loved ones a chance to get over their moods.

The old expert was teaching his grandson. "Here is a nightmare hand. At least I still shudder when I remember it."

"What's nightmarish about it?" asked the 12-year-old "You simply duck one heart and win the second. Then you cash four clubs and go after the diamonds. If they break you have ten tricks. If they don't, you go down one unless the hearts are 6-2 and the ace of spades is in the hand with the short hearts."

"Unfortunately," said the old man, "I was over twenty and playing in a total point team match. I wanted to take the best play for three notrump and decided that diamonds were not likely to break; that hearts would be 5-3 or 4-4; that if I could get one spade trick home I would be sure of my contract and that if hearts broke 4-4 I would still bring home the bacon.

"So, I won the first heart; led a diamond to dummy at trick two and played a low spade. If East held the ace he would surely have ducked, but West took the trick, cashed four heart tricks and eventually won the match by a few points."

Identification Nears In Bizarre Busnaping

CHOWCHILLA, Calif. (UPI) — A mystery man has provided authorities with information that could lead to identification of two of the armed gunmen who kidnaped 26 school children and their bus driver.

Alameda County Sheriff's Lieutenant Ed Volpe said Sunday night that names and photographs of the two suspects could be obtained within 48 hours based on information given detectives by a Sonora, Calif., man.

The information, Volpe said, pinpoints where the suspects were "on specific dates within the last year."

In the hunt for the kidnapers, authorities discovered the two vans used to haul the victims to their underground cavern prison were purchased at a military surplus firm.

Madera County Sheriff Ed Bates said Sunday night the vans were purchased by the same man, using a fictitious name, in November at the Alameda County firm. A third one, he said, was bought at the same time by another using a phony name.

All three were registered with the state Department of Motor Vehicles at Los Gatos last Wednesday, the sheriff said.

Bates said the information resulted from a license number noted by the bus driver, Frank Ray, 55, and some of the older children.

Bates said the owner of the company confirmed the sales and Alameda County sheriff's deputies were trying to contact the salesman who handled all three transactions.

The youngsters were taken hostage by three men Thursday as Ray was driving them home from summer school. The bus was hidden in a remote, dry creekbed.

The victims were placed in a buried tractor-trailer van in a rock quarry near Livermore, 100 miles north of here. After 16 hours, they managed to dig themselves out.

The victims said they saw only three men and their heads were covered with stockings. They said the gunmen talked little and gave no inkling why they staged the kidnap. No ransom demands were made.

Ray himself underwent hypnosis Sunday as investigators tried to obtain more details. Bates said he gave them the license number for one van — this had been obtained earlier in questioning. And, the sheriff said, he provided some digits for the second.

A Los Angeles physicians placed Ray under hypnosis for 25 minutes. Bates said, "We didn't want to keep him under too long because this was an emotional thing that happened."

The sheriff said hypnosis was not used on the children because only Ray made a "deliberate effort" to notice details during the two-day ordeal.

Composite pictures of two of the suspects were distributed to all law enforcement agencies in California and Nevada. They were drawn by a sheriff's deputy with the aid of two of the children, Jeffrey Brown, 10, and his 9-year-old sister, Jennifer.

One showed a white man with short, dark hair, thick eyebrows, puffy eyelids and pimples. "He has kind of a pug nose that's wide — sort of flattened out as though broken," the Alameda County Sheriff's Department said.

The suspect in the second sketch wore a hat. Jeffrey said he was "a scrawny little fellow with a pillow stuffed in his shirt to make him look fat."

There was no composite on the third suspect. Bates said there possibly could be a fourth one.

U.S. Attorney General Edward Levy ordered the FBI out of the case Saturday on grounds it was not in federal jurisdiction because the victims had not been transported across state lines and there was no ransom demand.

Reagan, Ford Seek More Delegates

By UPI

During the next four weeks, Ronald Reagan and Gerald Ford will search for that elusive flashpoint of support that could end their increasingly bitter struggle for the Republican presidential nomination and allow the fulltime pursuit of Jimmy Carter and his unified Democratic party.

With the Aug. 16 GOP convention nearing, UPI's count showed President Ford has 1,098 delegates pledged or leaning to him while 1,062 were committed or leaning to Reagan. There are 99 uncommitted votes.

It is unquestionably from that pile of delegates that a victory for Ford or Reagan will emerge. Both men could boast of productive delegate harvests during last weekend as a wedge for more support.

The President drew to within 32 votes of the 1,130 needed for nomination in Kansas City by sweeping all 35 of Connecticut's delegates. But the windfall was tempered by Reagan's 20-0 shutout of Ford among Utah delegates on the same day.

While the Republicans were jockeying for position, Carter, the Democratic nominee, had a quiet time at home in Plains, Ga., stopping to teach a Sunday school class, and relaxing for the most part.

The 51-year-old former Georgia governor has no public appearances set until Thursday when he goes to New York for the day.

At the Sunday school class, Carter repeated his theme of love meaning simple justice.

"Love and insolation doesn't mean anything," Carter told the overflowing class. "But love, if applied to other people, can change their lives for the better, through what I decribe as 'simple justice' — fairness, equality, concern, compassion, redressing of grievances, elimination of inequality, recognizing the poor are the ones who suffer most, even in our society which is supposed to be fair."

Carter's campaign treasurer, Robert Lipshutz, said the campaign would live within the $21.8 million in federal funds allocated to him.

Carter and his running mate, Sen. Walter Mondale of Min- nesota, also are expected to meet soon, although no date has been set. The Democratic campaign will remain publicly inactive through much of August, according to Carter spokesmen.

Inaction is a pleasure unavailable to the Republicans.

While both Ford and Reagan relaxed Sunday, both men's staffs were mapping plans to woo the uncommitteds.

Ford has a series of meetings with uncommitted delegates from New York and New Jersey later in the week and a trip to Mississippi to meet that state's officially uncommitted slate also is being considered.

Reagan arrived back in California to tell reporters, "I don't think anybody will really know" who the GOP winner is "until the first ballot is counted."

He said he expected to arrive at Kansas City within 10 to 25 delegates of the nomination.

Viking 1 Up for Landing Preview

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Viking 1's three-legged lander was awakened from hibernation in orbit around Mars and tested early today to make sure it was ready to land Tuesday morning in a desert basin on the planet.

One system after another was turned on, tested and then turned off by radio signals sent 214 million miles from Earth to Mars by engineers at Jet Propulsion Laboratory's control center.

Except for its twin computers and a tape recorder, the lander's electronic parts had been dormant since November when they were checked following launch from Cape Canaveral, Fla.

Engineers also ran through the instruments designed to conduct the first search for life on Mars, examine its soil, monitor its weather and listen for marsquakes.

Viking 1 was sent its landing orders Sunday, but will not begin the three-hour 20-minute descent sequence until its computers receive a "go" command an hour before the sterilized lander is to separate from its orbiting mothership. This is scheduled for 4:52 a.m. EDT Tuesday.

Eight small braking rockets will start the descent from a 930-mile high orbit. The Viking lander will use the aerodynamic drag of its heat shield, a single pa Eight small braking rockets will start the descent from a 930-mile high orbit. The Viking lander will use the aerodynah.

The landing engines are needed because Mars' atmosphere is too thin to allow the parachute to ease the craft to a soft landing.

Touchdown is expected about 8:12 a.m. Tuesday in a 130-by60 mile area near the western slopes of what seems to be a vast, now-dry drainage basin for great rivers that apparently flowed over much of Mars millions or perhaps billions of years ago.

The basin is named Chryse, which means land of gold. By chance, Viking geologist Harold Masursky said Sunday there is a possibility the lander may find gold, diamonds, platinum and other exotic minerals on the surface.

He said this possibility exists because of the geologic makeup of the area. The basin is crisscrossed by what appear to be volcanic ridges. Pictures suggest highlands to the west have dried up river beds leading downslope.

The reasoning is that the highlands consist of igneous rock with a large variety of minerals. If great floods of water cut through those uplands, then some of these minerals would have been washed downstream and trapped by the ridges.

If Viking 1 landed upstream of such a ridge, it might discover gold.

Radical Home Goes to Camp

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — This university community was a hotbed of radicalism in the 1960s. Today stacks of posters with revolutionary themes are gathering dust in its bookstores.

The young now want pictures of whales and Tarzan as well as posters of luminescent, futuristic design.

Anything that's "campy."

"It's just one of those things," Ed Hunolt, owner of the Berkeley Book Store across from the University of California, said. "The cycle has passed. The students are back to normal now.

"They've learned that they can best achieve their aims by working in the system ... The times are changing."

Hunolt said he once featured all the revolutionary posters.

Now, he said, the young people want maps of the fantastical countries described in the books of J.R.R. Tolkien, such as "Lord of the Rings," and pictures of Tarzan. The latter is a hot item among fans of Edgar Rice Burroughs.

Terri Gall, poster manager for the California Book Co., said the biggest sellers were advertising posters from the early decades of the century, among them one boasting of the attractions at the 1904 World's Fair in St. Louis.

"The whales are going like hotcakes," she said. "They're about the only animal poster still selling. The 'Save the Whales' movement really boosted them."

Deadline Set for Filing of Objections

Esopus Flood Work To Start

The Army Corps of Engineers says work could begin this summer.

After more than 10 years of prodding by local governmental officials including Rep. Hamilton Fish Jr., R-25th Dist., and Mayor Francis R. Koenig, the corps announced the date of Aug. 16 has been set as the deadline for filing of any criticisms or protests about the project.

But while Koenig believes it is imperative the project be started this year, citing the havoc created in February by two days of thaw and rain along the flood plain, Legislator Richard D. Nace, R-Dist.5, will once again protest the plan unless the Town of Ulster is included in the project.

The $2 million flood control project, authorized under the Flood Control Act, calls for 1,565 feet of levees and 910 feet of walls along the south bank of the Esopus Creek.

The principle cause of the flooding is the inability of the existing channel to carry the rain and snow runoff at all times.

The flood area consists of about 60 acres extending from Route 28, Washington Avenue, east to Chandler Drive and from the Penn Central Railroad to Esopus Creek.

According to the corps, the one-sided dike project would increase the water level on the Town of Ulster side of the creek by two inches, considered by federal officials to be an insignificant amount.

But Nace disagrees, feeling the increase could mean disaster to properties on the west side of the creek.

Nace secured about 50 petitions last March from Ulster residents who want the town to be included in the project.

The corps believes the objection invalid since is the corps policy to solve flood problems in one location at a time, according to Samuel T. Tosi, chief of the River Basin Section. He said the corps will study the situation further, if warranted. .

Flood protection work will also include a ponding area, pumping station and drainage facilities. Trees and shrubs will be planted along the levees and floodwalls to beautify the setting of the project, according to Thomas C. Hunter Jr., district engineer New York District.

MARKET BASKET

City Food Prices Up .7%

KINGSTON — The cost of feeding a family of four in Kingston rose .7 per cent last week to $66.46, according to figures released today by the Ulster County Consumer Information Service.

But across the county, the price of a standard 41-item market basket of food fell .4 per cent during the week ending July 16 to $67.01. Kingston was the cheapest place to buy food in Ulster County.

The totals for the other areas included in the survey are: Ellenville-Warwarsing, $66.74; Port Ewen-New Paltz-Rosendale, $66.94; Lloyd-Marlborough, $67.01; and Woodstock-Saugerties, $67.88, 2 per cent higher than Kingston's figure.

The previous week's totals were $65.99 in Kingston and $67.01 across the county.

The price of fresh produce was up 3 per cent, while beverages and grain products rose 2 per cent. Declines were posted in the meat and fish category.

The figures are based on a survey of three Kingston supermarkets and 13 other chain food stores across the county.

Tombstone Find Puts McNeils in Spotlight

TIVOLI — Thrust into the national spotlight by a Thomas Paine tombstone, Mr. and Mrs. Jack F. McNeil are now beset by trampled grass, security worries and a sore throat from talking to reporters.

From about the time the Sunday Freeman hit the street with a story about the apparently 167-year-old tombstone the McNeils unearthed Saturday while digging a septic system in the back yard, their phone has been busy.

"It started ringing Sunday afternoon, was busy until 11 o'clock Sunday night, then started up again at 7 this morning. I'm getting a sore throat," said Mrs. McNeil, a school bus driver who was supposed to be enjoying a vacation this week.

Her husband, a heavy equipment operator for the state, did manage to go to work this morning, but he wasn't able to relax much Sunday in the onslaught of newspaper and broadcast reporters, some calling from as far away as California.

Sometime today, an expert historian, the director of the Yesteryear Museum in Morristown, N.J., will arrive at the McNeils' four-acre spread to try to check the authenticity of the stone bearing the name of America's most famous Revolutionary War pamphleteer.

One side of the seven-foot-long marble monument is inscribed with Paine's name, birth date and place, and the exact day of his death in New York in 1809. However, the other side is dedicated to John C. Lasher, who died 68 years later.

Although many new questions now must be answered, Paine's burial place has been a mystery ever since 1819 when his body reportedly was lost while being moved from his New Rochelle farm to his native England.

"When we brushed off the dirt and I read the name, I said, 'Oh no, not THE Thomas Paine.' But my daughter got out the encyclopedia , and all the dates matched," Mrs. McNeil said.

After the discovery, the McNeils cordoned off the stone with their family vehicles and several of their German shepherd dogs. The family slept fitfully Sunday night, half expecting to be awakened by the dogs barking at intruders.

"The man from the museum said he has the only known monument of Thomas Paine in the world, and he advised us to lock ours up. Oh boy," Mrs. McNeil sighed.

She and her husband are "withholding judgment" on what they will do if the stone is found to be authentic — and therefore priceless.

Crash Kills Kerhonkson Man

WARWARSING — A Kerhonkson man was killed and three others were injured in a one-car crash early this morning on Cape Road in Warwarsing.

Thomas Marsallo, 22, of Berme Road, Kerhonkson was killed when the car struck a tree and a concrete archway. The driver, Michael J. Smith, 23, and two other passengers, Donna Coyle, 21, and John Sakowski, 23, all of them Syracuse residents, were taken to Ellenville Hospital where their condition is described as "fair".

The car, heading east on Cape Road failed to negotiate a left-hand curve one-tenth of a mile from the Irish Cape Road. The car travelled about 140 feet before crashing into the two obstacles, Hurley state police reported.

Smith is being treated for scalp lacerations, Sakowski for shoulder injuries, and Ms. Coyle for abrasions of the neck and forehead. She will be X-rayed today to detect a possible pelvic fracture.

Smith was charged with driving while intoxicated.

Hoffman Blaze Believed Arson

KINGSTON — The arson investigation unit of the Kingston Fire Department and Kingston city detectives say the June 4 fire at the 300-year-old Hoffman House on North Front Street was almost certainly set deliberately.

Captain Robert Priest of the arson investigation unit says that patterns in the scorching of the floor of the building indicate the presence of an incendiary liquid. The liquid collects in the low spots on the floor, and as a result these areas are scorched more deeply. Samples of the flooring have been analyzed, but tests have proved inconclusive as to the type of liquid used.

Priest said questioning of the workmen involved in the renovation of the historic house have shown that it is unlikely the fire was set accidentally and that there was no satisfactory explanation for the presence of the incendiary liquid — except arson.

Railroad Could Be Saved

KINGSTON — The latest strategy to save the picturesque Catskill Mountain Branch Railroad is to "buy it by default" and run it locally after federal subsidies run out next month.

"In a way, I'm glad to see this coming to a head because I'm opposed to the present system of subsidized operation," said Earl Pardini, president of Catskill Mountain Transportation Corp. (CMTC), a group trying for the past three years to rescue the 83-mile line from Kingston to Bloomville.

With a local, non-union crew, more efficient management and increased tourist trade, there is a "very definite possibility" the line can survive, Pardini said.

Penn Central Railroad now operates the branch with the help of a $404,421 federal subsidy, but that money runs out Aug. 31. State transportation authorities last week announced they won't recommend putting more subsidies into the line.

"When operations cease or sometime very shortly after that, Penn Central is going to have to sell that branch. I think we can buy it by default," Pardini said.

"One thing is sure. Nobody else is going to be around to buy it."

Disappointed that the state seems to be bowing out of the picture, Pardini held Penn Central chiefly responsible for what he called a subsidy "ripoff."

With crews imported from as far away as New Jersey, with union "featherbedding" on repair jobs and with apathetic management, the line's operation has been "intentionally depleted to a disgusting level," Pardini said.

At one time, CMTC had informally negotiated the buying price of the line down to $850,000, but then the federal Conrail (consolidated railroad) system was instituted, the Catskill branch was shuffled out, and Penn Central put a $5 million price tag on it, a move Pardini saw as a desperation attempt to recoup heavy losses.

For tax purposes in the towns through which it runs, the line is valued somewhere around $2.5 million.

Although the line last year ran 575 carloads, mostly one-way freight feed hauls to dairy farmers, CMTC at one time had signed commitments from agricultural and other users that would have pushed the annual traffic up to 1,700 carloads a year.

Also at one time, there were promises of federal "discretionary" funds to match any local or state pledges to buoy up the line, but the state now has said that the discretionary fund plan has been scrapped on the federal level.

"It's all crazy," Pardini said. "It's all a matter of whose hand you shake in Washington. It makes me sick."

Although there are federal subsidies available for rail lines with social and environmental importance, the Catskill branch hasn't been put in that category by federal and state authorities, a decision that Pardini disputes.

Although the line weaves within yards of heavily traveled Rt. 28, the Catskill railroad passenger gets a "very serene, beautiful feeling that you don't get any other place. It's like taking a journey into the past." Pardini said.

With a surplus locomotive or two, with additional freight customers like timber industries needing low-cost transportation of bulk wood chips, and with extra tourist business, possibly weekend excursions from New York City, the Catskill Mountain Branch could be a viable operation, Pardini said.

Earl Pardini

POOL'S OPEN

A long time in coming, the new intermediate pool at Kingston Point is now being used by classes and special groups. Here, a group of youngsters with learning disabilities gets supervised instruction under a program funded by a $2,000 IBM grant to the Association for Children with Learning Disabilities, Ulster County Chapter. The pool, a uniform four feet deep, was started under the administration of Mayor Raymond Garrigan but was beset by years of paint and liner problems, finally straightened out this summer.

POLICE BEAT

Murder Attempt Investigated

ARKVILLE — The attempted murder of Orville J. Chase, 58, of Arkville is being investigated by state police from Kingston and Margaretville.

Chase, 58, the caretaker of the Kingdon Gould estate in Arkville, was fired upon three times at 10:15 Friday night as he was riding in his pickup truck along Dry Brook Road in Arkville.

As he was travelling along the road, looking for a stray calf, a pickup truck began to pass him on the left. As the truck pulled alongside, an unknown passenger fired a rifle shot at Chase, narrowly missing him and passing through a window.

A second and third shot were fired as the battered truck pulled in front of Chase and sped away. One of those shots hit Chase's windshield.

A $5,000 reward for the apprehension and conviction of the criminals has been offered by Kingdon Gould.

Couple Killed in Greene

A teenaged couple died Saturday night when they were thrown out of their car after it turned over on Route 81 in Greenville.

Robert Meher, 17, of Fourth Street, Troy, the owner and driver of the car, and his passenger, Kathleen Kelly, 17, of 11 Warmington St., Albany, were travelling east on Route 81 at a high rate of speed when their car veered off the south side of the road, Leeds State Police stated.

The 1971 Chevrolet then skidded across the road, and hit and rolled over a guardrail. Police conjecture that the car's doors opened during the rollover.

The two were pronounced dead on the scene with many severe injuries. One was found lying over the rail, the other beyond it.

A Surprise Dip

Alan R. Shultis, 21, of 1249 Van Vliderden Rd., Saugerties was turning left to continue on Van Vlierden Road in a southeasterly direction at 6 p.m. Sunday when he lost control of the vehicle, Saugerties Town Police said. He was travelling at a high rate of speed, police added.

His car, a 1968 Ford, hit a guardrail, rolled over it, and then rolled down a hill into a small creek below the reservoir. The car was totalled, but Shultis was unharmed.

He was charged with driving while intoxicated and travelling at a speed not reasonable. He was and arraigned before Saugerties Town Judge Timothy Murphy. He was released in $50 bail and the custody of his father.

Dutchess Driver Fair

Terance Deatore, 18, of Clinton Corners, is listed in fair condition today after the car he was driving flipped over in the middle of Route 308 in Rhinebeck.

His car, a 1968 Dodge, ran off the north shoulder of the road, headed back across the highway, turning upside down in the middle of the roadway at 1:55 a.m. today.

He was taken to Northern Dutchess Hospital and transferred this morning to St. Francis Hospital, suffering from possible fractures of the knee, lower leg, and foot.

Teens Picked Up

Three teenaged girls, behaving in an allegedly suspicious manner in a wooded area behind Marcel's Restaurant in Esopus were picked up at 3 a.m. this morning by the Ulster County Sheriff's Department.

The young women, residents of St. Cabrini's Home in West Park, were returned to the home. Thomas Johnson of the Juvenile Aid Bureau and Corporal David Hyatt are investigated the possibility that the women were meeting with local youths. A conference between the Juvenile Aid Bureau and St. Cabrini's Home is planned.

'Jaws' Strikes Again

POIPU, Kauai (UPI) — The body of a scuba diver ravaged by sharks was found a mile from where he disappeared while trying to swim to shore from a disabled boat.

Stephen C. Powell, San Jose, Calif., was diving with three other men near Makahuena Point Friday when the engine of their boat broke down. All four swam for shore, but only three reached there.

The Coast Guard said the lower half of Powell's body was recovered Saturday east of the point. A spokesman said it was not known whether Powell was killed by sharks or drowned before being attacked by them.

Usery Steps Into Westinghouse Strike

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Labor Secretary William J. Usery personally intervened Sunday in the dispute between Westinghouse Electric Corp. and three big unions whose strike has closed company plants and repair shops across the country.

A spokesman for Usery said he arrived at Westinghouse headquarters at 9:30 a.m. and immediately entered the talks. He made the decision to attempt mediation Saturday evening after discussing the situation on the telephone with the parties involved.

The spokesman said he did not know how long Usery would remain directly involved. The Labor secretary mediated the Westinghouse contract talks three years ago when he served as director of the Federal Mediation Service.

About 41,000 workers are now affected by the walkout.

Westinghouse said 45 manufacturing plants and 41 repair shops had been closed by the strike. About 14 other company operations still remain open due to local contract arrangements, the firm said.

"We have bent and postponed to the limit of our members' patience," the unions said.

He said that was because "our package is fully equal to the GE (General Electric Corp.) settlement."

Westinghouse has offered the unions a 36-month contract that includes wage and benifit increases and a cost-of-living safeguard

The International Union of Electrical Workers and the United Electrical Workers, representing about 28,000 employes, Sunday joined the nationwide strike that began earlier in the week.

Last Monday, 13,000 members of of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers walked out when their contract expired. The other unions had extended the contract on a dayto-day basis.

Westinghouse has about 150,000 employes not represented by the unions.

An additional 10 other unions representing about 3,000 Westinghouse workers also supported the strike and will join the walkout when their contracts expire.

Auto Workers Foresee Bargaining in Peace

DETROIT (UPI) — Traditionally, negotiations between the United Auto Workers and the nation's four major auto companies open with a handshake. For the past nine years, it's been just as traditional for them to end with a strike.

This year, observers say, things will be different.

UAW President Leonard Woodcock planned to open the talks today, appearing for the traditional handshake with negotiators at General Motors Corp. On Tuesday, he will repeat the performance at Ford Motor Co. and on succeeding days at Chrysler Corp. and American Motors Corp

The talks are beginning a week later than in past years because UAW officials were in New York city last week to help select Jimmy Carter as the Democratic presidential candidate. Woodcock, an early Carter backer, is almost assured of a post in a Carter administration.

In a year when labor contracts covering more than 4½ million workers are being worked out, the UAW-auto company talks are the largest and may be the most peaceful, observers say.

"There just doesn't seem to be the mood for any major walkout," one veteran labor observer said. "But all that could change by the time the strike deadline of midnight, Sept. 14, approaches."

In each of the past three negotiating sessions, the UAW has called strikes to back its demands — 68 days against Ford in 1967, 67 days against General Motors in 1970 and nine days at Chrysler in 1973.

Key issues appear to be job security, an all-encompassing term the union is using to label its demands for job protection for present workers and creation of more jobs; improved unemployment benefits to cushion workers during layoffs; health care costs, an industry demand that auto workers share in the rapidly escalating costs; and improved pensions.

The industry is in its strongest position since 1973, when it negotiated new contracts as the Arab oil embargo was triggering a two-year slump that at one point put 212,000 workers on indefinite layoff and another 100,000 on temporary layoffs

With GM and Ford locked in a battle with the introduction of 1977-model cars in the fall, the likelihood of a strike seems even more remote.

Once the ceremonies are out of the way, union and company negotiators at each company will meet in committees to determine what issues might become sore spots.

The UAW traditionally presents its demands to each company by late August. The four automakers can be expected to present nearly identical counteroffers

At that point, the UAW selects its "target" — the company that must settle by the strike deadline on a pattern-setting agreement or face a strike while its competitors continue to build cars

Observers say Ford — last the strike target in 1967 — appeared the likely "target," but Woodcock said GM or Chrysler are just as likely

Town Turns Dump into A Bicentennial Park

SCOTIA, N.Y. (UPI) — A four-acre dumping ground for debris has been turned into a riverside park area here in a Bicentennial transformation which Dennis Madden terms a "minor miracle."

Local residents have Madden, a young Schenectady banker, to thank for the idea and the momentum — and themselves to thank for the follow-through.

The facility, named "Freedom Park," will receive the new York State Bicentennial Barge for three days this week It took 18 months to plan and build — with the effort coming from local residents, merchants, contractors, and architects who volunteered days, nights and weekends to make it a success.

Madden, 30, a member of the Schenectady County Bicentennial Commission, got the idea in January 1975 at an Albany meeting with officials of the Bicentennial Barge project.

Communities wishing to host the barge during its 36 stop, four-and-one-half month tour of the state, he was told, would be expected to provide a docking facility large enough to handle the nealy 260 ft. floating museum.

"We had no such facility," Madden says He returned home and "scoured the banks on both sides of the Mohawk to find an area which might be developed into a proper docking facility."

Madden found a parcel of land on the Scotia side of the Mohawk river which had been used as a landfill site for a construction company. He found the owners of the land and arranged an 18-month $1 lease. He had a local artist and an architect friend draw up renderings and plans for the park — for free.

The actual construction work began last October and the park was dedicated Sunday.

"I didn't think we had a prayer to get it finished in time," Madden remembers. "Last year the volunteers were few and far between " Madden remembers."But this spring, when the project began shaping up, people really began helping. We had persons from all age groups, from all over the capital district. They were just terrific."

Drawing upon volunteered materials and equipment from a wide variety of local groups, Madden says the construction has "changed the whole shape of the area " The site includes an amphitheatre, trees, shrubs, tables and benches, descriptive plaques, and two new piers.

"The park is the most important thing to come out of this celebration. The festival we'll have to welcome the barge will be forgotten in two months But the park — it will still be here. It would have been a waste of time and money, and very irresponsible of us, to build this park for just a three-day visit."

Madden estimates that had the park not been such a community effort, the project would have cost "at least $100,000." Instead, he says, the out-of-pocket costs will be about one-tenth of that.

The state likes the project so much, Madden says, that they "hold Scotia up as an example."

How did he get all those people to put in all that time, money, and energy?

"I gave 175 speeches," Madden says. "I've had two birthdays since we began this thing. And I feel like I'm 52 "

Americans Fleeing Beirut in Scores

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Hundreds of Americans and other foreign nationals today prepared to flee Beirut in what may be the last organized evacuation of foreigners from the ravaged city.

But despite a new wave of assaults in the capital and the countryside, it appeared more than 1,000 Americans decided to take their chances and stay behind

Left-wing and right-wing reports said fresh Syrian troops and about 30 more Syrian tanks crossed into Lebanon today and some units moved up to Syrian positions at Sofar, 15 miles east of Beirut, and toward leftist outposts around Aintourah, further north.

The troop movements appeared to support the Christian offensive against Aintourah and the Palestinian refugee camp of Tal Zaatar in Beirut.

Heavy fighting raged inside Tal Zaatar, besieged by Christian militamen for four weeks

Both the Palestinians and the rightists claimed advances in the house-to-house battle, but the defenders managed to hang on through another day of concentrated attacks

Daylong rocket blasts and machine gun bursts raked rubble-choked streets in Beirut's port and downtown districts.

At the U.S. embassy, hundreds waited in line for hours to sign up for Tuesday's evacuats raked rubble-choked streets in Beirut's port and downtown districts

At the U.S. embassy, hundreds waited in line including 161 Americans and their dependents. The American community in Beirut is estimated to number about 1,500.

U.S. officials warned earlier that once the convoy left, the embassy no longer would be able to provide protection or services to the American community. Other embassies urged their nationals to join the evacuation, which British officials called "the last foreseeable chance of leaving."

Persistent rumors of a Christian assault on western Beirut, where most foreigners live, convinced many to flee But Western diplomatic sources said there was "no solid information" to back up the reports

Several Lebanese citizens also showed up to register for the convoy but were told the United States could evacuate only foreign nationals

"But I have an American brother-in-law," protested one Lebanese woman "No one seems to care about the Lebanese."

But left-wing sources gave Jalloud little chance of success and said that if his mission fails, the Syrians might launch a massive offensive in Lebanon.

Record Arrival Time

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — The records William Brannan ordered have arrived — 10 years late

Brannan, a collector, had ordered the package of 35 old -time 78 rpm's from Frank Pope of Carnegie, Pa

He received notice Thursday there was a package for him at the post office. He picked it up the next day. The package carried a notice that a mail carrier tried to deliver the package at his home July 16, 1966, but no one was home.

Brannan didn't really mind that 15 of the 35 records were broken. He figures those that are left are worth ten times more now than they were when he ordered them.

Most of discs were recorded in the 1930s by Shep Fields and his Rippling Rhythm and a group called the Hoosier Hot Shots.

STAFF'S CHANCE

The Sahara in Ulster

The Town of Ulster has a lot going for it. There's no doubt about that.

However, the many plusses of this sprawling township — spreading from the area of IBM and its environs over to Spring Lake — certainly don't include the Town of Ulster Little League baseball complex.

And a complex it is.

In addition to the minor league setup and the "older boys" field, there was a new addition this year —one for the young distaffers.

But the complex doesn't stop here. There's a lot of other activity going on —soccer games to the rear of the Chambers School and still other games in the vast setup.

We don't object to all this. It's great for the youngsters and the young people. We only wish this type of organized ball was available when we were younger and playing sandlot ball at St. Mary's Field and the like.

But what we do strenuously object to is the miserable condition of the entrance to this sprawling sports center —a dirt road that resembles the Sahara Desert not only during the sports season but throughout the year as well.

It's not a very pleasant situation for the residents along Van Keuren Road (opposite the field) and it certainly doesn't make visitors to the ball park any happier when they have to go home and wash their cars again.

And they don't have to contend with just the 'Sahara ' desert —there are several good-sized pot holes along the way that aren't the best thing in the world for automobiles.

There have been some attempts to make this roadway a little more presentable in the past.

But how about a concerted effort by town officials —or working jointly with the coffers of the Little League, if necessary —to really do something long-lasting this time?

—Irwin J. Thomas

Are Police Forgiven Everything?

Dear Editor:

in reference to your article "Court Releases Attica Evidence to Officials," July 14.

Am I to understand that Associate Justice Walter J. Mahoney thinks police and prison guards who break laws, abuse their official positions and treat human beings like so many cattle should not be held accountable for their crimes? Isn't a police officer still a man, and therefore governed by law?

The P.B.A., rather than trying to hide its law-breakers behind their "Benevolent Association," would do better by exposing and expelling the offenders. Isn't five years long enough to protect these untried law-breakers?

Constables Responded Quickly

Dear Editor:

As chairman of the Citizens' Action Committee on the Traver Hollow Bridge and as a private citizen, I would like to extend my thanks, and those of my family, for the excellent services performed by the Town of Olive constables.

When, on the afternoon of April 18, I received a phone call threatening to fire-bomb my home, Constables Jacobson and Jaxheimer reacted quickly, and did a great deal to allay my fears and those of my family. Later that same evening, we received calls from Constable Katssor and Town Councilman Adsit assuring us that extra police protection would be provided by both constables and volunteer firemen.

In another, unrelated, incident, the constables are also to be highly praised. If it were not for the quick work of Constables Kassor and Humphrey on the night of June 5, it is probable that the Traver Hollow Bridge would have been damaged far more than it was and that the fire could have become an extended forest fire endangering many lives and homes in the area.

Please convey my personal thanks and those of my family to the fine constabulary of the Town of Olive.

H.J. BREITENBERGER

Money Is Going to Waste

Dear Editor:

Do the good people of Kingston know that while there seems to be no money for schools, teachers, parks, the aged and poor, work projects, or even a vehicle to drive young people to work, $75,000 has been allocated to the Bicentennial Commission for nonsense? $55,000 to go to making a movie about Governor Clinton? This is a crime against humanity. Anyone connected with it should be put away (I'm not talking office workers). Nobody knew that there was government money available to create jobs? You've got to be kidding! Fire them! Get rid of them! They just lost us money!

I think that if you want to celebrate the American Revolution properly, let's have another kind of revolution. And start by having an open hearing — let the local politicians answer, in public, on this question: What have you done for the people of Ulster County? What have you done for Kingston? Ask them what each has done to bring money, jobs into our community!

We need factories and industry to put people back to work, to take them off welfare, to lower taxes (for a change), to rebuild this town and its self respect. So that a member of the Chamber of Commerce doesn't have to make remarks to graduating classes about "Yes, we have no jobs, no future for you here, but don't knock Kingston." If the politicos cannot answer, "I have brought this amount of money/business/jobs into our community or helped lower taxes by ..." then I say, fire them, each and every one of them! Who needs them! They cost too much!

Replace the moochers with salesmen who will work on commission. To keep their jobs, they must produce! They cannot vote themselves pay raises or LULUs — they'll work for us!

Revolution, for the positive, for we, the people. It's the only way to turn this depressed area's situation around. Then we can think about a happy birthday — next year!

LENNY PRICE

Puncturing Conventional Views

Dear Editor:

Reading your "Readers Write" column, July 14, is like reading a sermon in orthodoxy.

Being part Indian and also a direct descendant of Thomas Paine, author of the Bible of the American Revolution, I sit amused while a so-called celebration is a dance on the murdered dead of millions of Indians.

To Edwin J. Higby's letter: Abortion, ruled legal by the federal courts, is not Communism. Could we say that Mrs. McCormick is running for President on the Catholic ticket? Had the parents taught their children the facts of sex, there would be slight need for abortion. Getting into dialogue with the anti-abortionists is a strange land, wherein a fetus is sacred, but slaughtered millions in wars is blessed.

To Mr. George W. Swope's anti-Moonies letter: His preponderant worry is real estate. Why doesn't he look into the largest tax-free landholder in the U.S.A., excluding the Pentagon — namely, the Catholic Church?

To Robert J. Tompkins' incoherent letter against conservationists: Let him rationalize his guilt in other ways. Pointing a gun at a defenseless animal is neither heroic, needed, or ethical. There is no need for killing except the act of killing. Early gunmen killed buffalo and Indians for sport, equating them as inferior, Bible taught. As sidekicks he shot blacks if they desired to live like men.

International Default Looming?

WASHINGTON - Do we have an international version of the New York City default situation in the making?

The poorest countries, the non-oil exporting nations of the Third World, are $100 billion in debt with much of it coming due between now and 1980. Interest and repayment on principle amounts to 15 percent of all the money the countries earn from their exports. They might be able to handle such steep payments except that not only the oil they buy but the manufactured goods and food they import have jumped in price while the raw material commodities they export have collapsed in value.

You aren't being set up here for a bleeding heart pitch to give more money to the lazy natives. In fact, the United States doesn't give away much money any more, and that is a major cause of the problem.

Private banks have been lending these countries money. Emma Rothschild, in a splendidly lucid treatment of this subject in the May 27th and June 24th issues of "The New York Review of Books," notes that 64 percent of Chase Manhattan's profits last year came from its foreign operations. Thus a default by the debtor nations can have an immediate impact on us here at home. Nor is default just a theoretical possibility. In the past year Argentina, Chile and Zaire haven't been able to make their monthly payments and have had to renegotiate their obligations exactly as New York City.

This isn't the first time American banks have lent money to foreign countries only to learn they should have found better, more reliable borrowers. This happened almost regularly with a number of Caribbean countries around the turn of the century. What we used to do then was send the Marines in, seize the custom houses and collect the import duties to satisfy the banks' debts.

Using the Marines as a debt collection agency has gone out of style, at least temporarily. Moreover, occupying a country the size of Argentina or Zaire on behalf of the Bank of America or some such has certain practical drawbacks. Even economic coercion has its limits. We can force debtor countries to take the steps necessary to repay the loans but we run the risk of inciting mutiny in the affected populations. The screamings coming from New York City would be as nothing compared to what might happen abroad in those places where there is no fat to cut.

The total amount of money owing to the banks of the rich nations doesn't represent a terrifying fraction of their assets. Thsy could write off a high percentage of these loans without getting into serious trouble except for the way they lent the money. Most of it is in a mysterious currency known as Eurodollars.

Eurodollars are debts and credits outside the United States for which somebody could theoretically demand actual greenbacks. There are also units of bookkeeping currency called Euromarks and Europyen; that is, obligations outside of West Germany and Japan that can be cashed in back home in Bonn or Tokyo.

The rub is that nobody knows how much Eurodebt is floating around the world. The complexity of this interlocking debt structure makes the riddle of DNA look like the daily crossword puzzle. Rothschild cites, "for example a loan to a Tehran bank provided by the Cayman Islands branch of the Crocker National Bank of San Francisco, three Dutch subsidiaries of Japanese companies and sixteen other institutions." In another recent deal the Ljublianska Banka of Slovenia, Yugoslavia, in conjunction with a New York investment firm, brought forth a note issue expressed in Kuwaiti dinars, that is Eurodinars. Yes, you read it right. Communist nations play these capitalist banking games, too. Cuba and North Korea are Eurodollar borrowers.

If the debt structure goes down, the socialists may go plop right along with the capitalists. The difficulty is that nobody knows how strong or how weak all this wild lending is. We don't have a very clear idea of how many billions are involved, although everybody agrees it's mucho, molto, beaucoup de bucks.

If it seems impossible that the banks don't know the amount of all the loans outstanding, you must remember that banks, when left unregulated, can create money by the process of lending the same dollar over and over again. That's what's happened. The original real dollar upon which the Eurodollar speculation is built has been passed around among so many banks and re-lent so often, nobody is any longer able to keep track of it.

Heavy defaults by Third World nations could be the event that might cause lenders to call in their loans and bring the international money markets down. We have had so little experience with this sort of thing we don't even know how government intervention would operate to stabilize the mess. We don't know what effect this could have on our domestic banking system.

We do know that if American bankers were forced to play by the same rules in their foreign operations that the law makes them play by at home, they could never have gotten into this swamp. We don't know it yet, but we may soon learn that lending money to foreign governments is essentially a foreign policy function that can't be turned over to private banking institutions without great risk and high cost to taxpayers here.

Abolish The Indian Bureau

WASHINGTON — The Bureau of Indian Affairs has treated the Indians so shamefully that it ought to be abolished. This is the secret conclusion of the American Indian Policy Review Commission, which was established by Congress a year ago to investigate the federal government's mismanagement of Indian affairs.

The investigation grew out of a series of dramatic events, which began in November, 1972. As the voters were going to the polls, a coalition of Indian groups arrived in Washington to protest innumerable and timeless grievances.

They first occupied, then vandalized, then looted the building housing the BIA. They had discovered hundreds of file cabinets, which contained documentary evidence of the bungling, neglect and betrayal that have characterized the white man's treatment of the Indian.

Angrily, they spirited the evidence out of Washington. They later smuggled the evidence to us, and we wrote a series of columns. Then we presented the evidence to Congress, testifying how the Indians had been systematically robbed of their land, timber, water and mineral rights. Now the Review Commission has confirmed the sordid facts. It is not scheduled to issue a final report for several months, but its interim findings are detailed in a confidential memorandum.

The memo, written by the commission's director, Ernest Stevens, to its chairman, Sen. Janes Abourezk, D.-S.D', accused the BIA of mishandling Indian money, neglecting their safety and failing to protect their property rights.

The BIA stood by indifferently, the commission charges, even while known mobsters ripped off Indian land. Here are the details:

The Commission collected evidence that subcontracts to develop land on Indian reservations in New Mexico and Arizona were granted to firms controlled by "known underworld figures." In one case, a development corporation approved by the BIA handed out subcontracts to "one of the major figures in organized crime land fraud operations in the entire Southwest," according to sworn testimony.

Yet incredibly, Indian Affairs Commissioner Morris Thompson was unperturbed. He wrote that the transaction had occurred over three years ago and, therefore, that "the question is now apparently moot."

The Review Commission called for an investigation of the BIA's role as land trustee and "the BIA personnel responsible for approval of property leases."

Even more incredibly, the commission could find "no federal agency or authority in possession of an accurate assessment of the total federal budget for Indians." The commission pointed out, for example, that the BIA's budget "is not reconcilable" with the amount of money allotted by the White House's budget office. The BIA bureaucrats thought their budget for the current fiscal year was $918 million. But at the White House, the figure was listed as $927.7 million.

"If $20 million is lost in negotiations at the top," declares the memo, "there is no telling what gets lost on the way down."

The memo also cites the case of the industrial park that was supposed to be constructed on Indian land. Ten years ago, the Papago-Tucson Development Corporation leased 80 acres for the development. Although "several hundred thousand dollars" were invested in the project, the secret memo reveals, "today the 80-acre tract is nothing but weeds and dust."

The Papago Indians have also lost "billions of dollars in copper leases," charges the document. In addition, "massive anounts of federal funds" have been wasted in other meaningless and fraudulent projects.

The memo accuses the BIA of indifference toward Indian abuse. The State of Oklahoma, for example, allegedly is "a hot bed of violence and harassment" against Indians. The report cites the dramatic incident of an Indian boy who was arrested last February on breaking-and-entering charges. A state mental hospital examination revealed that the boy displayed no suicidal tendencies. Yet a month later, he was found dead in his jail cell, hanging by a belt which was not his own.

On behalf of the family, the BIA reluctantly asked the FBI for help. The youth's parents have yet to hear another word from either the BIA or FBI.

The Music of Summertime

A timid breeze spinning leaves at twilight. A blue lake held in the palm of a mountain. A red-faced infant, fighting the heat for 15 rounds in a bassinet. The whispers of air conditioners.

The family countdown to vacation time. Children in big cities playing in the bottoms of ovens. The moment before dawn, when the diamonds are on the lawn. A white cop sweating black through a uniform shirt.

Green apples in orchards waiting for a complexion. Iron faces in a steel train. Finches and robins staking a claim to a branch of a tree. The hum of bees. The diminuendo of a train whistle at night.

Stars - confetti stuck to the ceiling. Fireflies winking at jets, which wink back. Cold cuts and potato salad. A beer perspiring outside a bottle. The cool cellar; the oil burner in cardiac arrest.

A noisy brook busy rounding stones. A leaping trout shattering the mirror of a lake. The four-lane bowels of the city moving sluggishly. Golf balls flying everywhere - summer's hail storm. Old eyes squinting, barely believing in one more summer.

Window curtains flirtatiously lifting their skirts. An old locomotive panting for breath in a station. Ants and aunts at a picnic; the first asking so little. The dark cool of a tavern. Cleaning a cut knee, not forgetting the antiseptic kisses.

The silent furrow of a canoe. A military band fading on the wind. The hush of birds before a thunder shower. Gray ashes in a cold fireplace. A mirage of water on a hot highway. The tickle of perspiration on a tender back.

Big scoops of vanilla clouds in a pale sky. A red-faced thermometer. The dog panting on a tile floor. The tinkling chandelier of ice in a tall glass. White waves collapsing on a beach. The summer mask - sunglasses.

The crack of the bat, the basso profundo of 10,000 throats. The television set, repeating winter hiccups. The massage of a stinging shower. Ths unopened book on the night table. The stalled car, boiling mad. Two larks quarreling over a crumb.

New freckles on new faces. A dance frock taking liberties with long legs. The odor of bubbling tar. The dark mystery of a church. The overworked door on the refrigerator.

White sales and white sails. A squirrel frozen on a tree trunk. A moth dining on winter clothes in a closet. The chill blast outside a movie. The jaundiced wink of Arcturus - the roue of the night sky.

The shoe-button eyes of field mice in a hayloft. Fields of wheat making waves. Seagulls standing in the sky. The molten lava of the metropolis, a million headlights on a highway. Effeminate lawn sprinklers waving their water.

A brook chuckling over a forgotten joke. A melon of a moon. Strong faces in afternoon clouds. A straw hat on an old ice wagon horse. Butter tracing the kernels of corn in braille. The walrus bark of a summer cold.

A big hat framing a beautiful face. Cool sheets. A hummimgbird, kissing flowers to death. Toll booths, legal shakedown artists. Chlorinated eyes. The family album, with heads and arms cut off. The quiet sea, smoothing sandy beaches.

A romantic ship moving off the edge of the world. Teenagers touching fearfully in a dark movie. Cold cereal. Tart strawberries. An ice cream cone. An apoplectic tomato. An old zipper willing to meet you halfway. Taffy. The tinny music of the carousel. A hot dog. Clams on the half shell.

Summer is colored balloons, iced tea, a secret diary, Boy Scouts on a hike. It is the time for the acrobatics of beach Apollos, stock car races, dozing on a porch. It is wild daisies, night fireworks, arthritic hands entwined.

It is bright sunlight and small shadows. A time to hope, a time to promise. Summer...

Actress Who Played in Showboat's First Production Returns for Tuesday's Melodrama

EDDYVILLE—The incomparable Pat Mannes arrived in Kingston this week to play Mrs. Upson Asterbilt, a commanding dowager of Newport and Brooklyn,in the Showboat's Tuesday's production, "Dirty Works at the Crossroads." Miss Mannes, remembered for her roles as Vera in "Mame" and Rita Marlow in "Will Success Spoil Rock Hunter," has a special affection for the Showboat and Captain Furbush. Years ago when the Showboat opened off Staten Island, she auditioned for a part in the first Showboat production. She was told, as most hopefuls are, "don't call us, we'll call you," but the phone was ringing when she returned to her apartment and Captain Furbush gave her the happy news that she had gotten the part. Her interest and support of the Showboat have lasted through the years.

Showboat producer Judy Strawn went to New York several weeks ago to pursuade Miss Mannes to come to Kingston to play Mrs. Asterbilt. Happy to be back aboard the Showboat, Miss Mannes commented that "theatre, that fabulous invalid, has picked up a bit, due, of course, to the current wave of nostalgia and the return to the beautifully written plays of the past." When asked about her transition from leading lady to character parts, she said that since she has gained 30 pounds, she no longer picks parts, the parts pick her. A 14-day stint at Duke University on the rice diet was most successful until her gourmet cooking and frequent entertaining caught up with her

Miss Mannes lives alone amid the brocade and velvet of her unusual home done entirely in shades of rose, her favorite color. She mused, "I have had one husband and one dog. I occasionally consider having another husband, but never another dog because it was so painful when I lost her." Miss Mannes' beloved dog is buried beneath Rudolph Valentino's horse in the Hidden Hills Pet Cemetery in California

Tongore Garden Club Plans Colonial Tea, Flower Show

SHOKAN—The Tongore Garden Club has announced plans for "Colonial Olive", a Colonial Tea and Flower Show for Aug. 14. The event will be held downstairs at the Olive Free Library in West Shokan fkrom 1 to 5 p.m. In keeping with the Colonial theme, the show will feature small designs and plants reminiscent of the small flower prints of calico and the tiny flowers painted on china and embroidered on linens of the colonial period.

Mrs. E. Lee Denman, general chairperson, has announced that the public may exhibit in all classes and that Junior exhibits are particularly desired.

Chairpersons of the divisions from whom further information may be obtained include Mrs. August Hollender, Horticulture with many classes; Mrs. Raymond Cruthers, Artistic Design with classes specified as America the Bountiful; Colonial Handicrafts; 1976 Centerpiec Nature's Gift and Small Is Beautiful.

Mrs. James McGloughlin, Junior Division chairperson, offers four horticulture classes and three artistic classes: The Boston Tea Party; the Minutemen and In Honor of Betsy Ross.

Dr. and Mrs. Morris Kwit will have charge of the educational division which will be an exhibit called "Small Too Is Beautiful" and will feature photographs and dried and fresh flowers.

Mrs. Robert Larsen will be chairperson for the Colonial Tea; Mrs. Carl Anderson, The Country Store Boutique featuring houseplants, dried materials, hanging planters; Mrs. Frank Snyder, staging Mrs. Hope Miller," posters and signs.

Awards will be made by popular vote.

The Olive Historic Society has scheduled bus trips to points of interest in the Town of Olive, leaving the library throughout the day.

'Fanfare' and 'Union Jack' Will Premiere This Week

SARATOGA SPRINGS—The second week of performance by the New York City Ballet at the Saratoga Festival will feature two Saratoga Premieres, "Fanfare" and "Union Jack."

On Tuesday, July 20 "Fanfare" choreographed by Jerome Robbins, will be danced in Saratoga for the first time Set to the music of Benjami Britten's "The Young Person's Guide to the Orchestra,"which was written as a work to introduce the instruments of the orchestra to young children, the ballet dancers interpret the music the instruments play.

On Friday evening, July 23, George Balanchine's newest ballet, "Union Jack," will have its first out-of-New York City performance. The ballet, which had its world premiere May 12 at the company's Annual Spring Gala is the second in a series, the first of which was Balanchine's "Stars and Stripes," the festive send-up of Sousa's patriotism which delighted audiences since its premiere in 1958 With a third ballet, "Tricolore," to come in 1977, which will commemorate the Battle of Saratoga, the three works will be known as "Entente Cordiale," forming a full-evening's light entertainment

"Union Jack" acknowledges those ritual aspects of Britain as alive today in military ceremony and in theatrical vitality as they were in the 18th century It utilizes folk, military naval and music-hall themes The music was selected and arranged by Hershey Kay, scenery and costumes designed by Rouben Ter-Arutunian.

Seventy dancers of the New York City Ballet, the largest number ever to be assembled on the stage at the same time, will dance the hour-long "Union Jack' including the same nine principals of the premiere performance

These are but two of the ballets which will be performed during the week:Tuesday through Saturday evenings at 8:15 and Thursday and Saturday at 2 p m

PETER J. MANCUSO II

Pianist Peter Mancuso 11 Will Perform at Boston

KINGSTON—Area pianist Peter J Mancuso II will perform a graduate piano recital at Boston University School for the Arts July 30, 7 p.m. The recital will be the first of two recitals presented in partial fulfillment of the requirements for the degree of Master of Music in piano performance

Featured repertoire for the July recital will be the Partita No 2 in C minor by J S. Bach; Sonata in E, Op. 109 by Beethoven; three preludes by Debussy, and the Sonata in G Minor, Op. 22 by Schumann.

A student of Dr. Edgar Roberts of Kingston, Mancuso has performed for the International Bach Society this past March at the Lincon Center for the Performing Arts Library Auditorium, and presented a joint recital this past April at Ulster County Community College with his wife, Pauline, a flutist. He is director of choral activities at Saugerties Junior-Senior High School, and teaches piano privately.

'Chopin Lives' Slated for New Paltz

NEW PALTZ—A blend of theatre and the music of Chopin will be presented at the State UniVersity College at New Paltz July 20 when Robert Guralnik appears in "Chopin Lives" at 8:30 p m in McKenna Theatre on campus.

Dressed in elegant 19th century concert clothes and using simple lighting effects, Guralnik portrays Chopin in a dramatic presentation of the composer's music and reminiscents about his times, his music and the relationship to both. What is projected is an intimately revealing portrait of the man

The production results from Guralnik's feeling, after having appeared in stage productions, that performing musicians had to fine new ways of presenting themselves and music in order to remain viable. With Harold Guskin, a director of the New York University Performing Arts Center, he created "Chopin Lives" in an attempt to wed serious music to the theatre within the framework of the traditional recital.

Guralnik is a New Yorker who studied at the High School of Music and Art and at the Manhattan School of Music. He served for three years with the US Army as the piano soloist with the US Military Academy band at West Point. He was instrumental in establishing a summer dinner-chamber music series with members of the New York Philharmonic, and was one of the founding members of the Portland Summer Concerts in Portland, Ore. He has recorded for the Mace and Serenus labels.

Admission will be $2 for adults, $1 for students, children and senior citizens.

Float-in,Time Capsule Projects Scheduled For High Falls

HIGH FALLS—The next two events scheduled by the High Falls Bicentennial Committee for the year's celebration will include a Spirit of '76 Float-In, Sunday, Aug. 22, at 2 p.m. and a Bicentennial Time Capsule Placing Ceremony, Oct. 10.

As the committee's release notes, "The Tall Ships came to New York City... the Great Floats will Come to High Falls..." for the Float-In on the Rondout Creek in the High Falls high rocks area. Floats, rafts, rubber tubes, mattresses, will be the order of the day. Everyone is welcome and reminded to bring picnic lunches and cold drinks.

The Bicentennial Time Capsule project for Oct. 10, 2 p.m.,

requires the effort of all persons in the community. Local citizens are asked to select items which could be placed in the sealed concrete septic tank to be opened in the year 2000. Items should be labeled with names and addresses and any explanation deemed necessary.

These continuing programs are all part of the community celebration of the Bicentennial year. The committee expresses appreciation to all who assisted in making the July 4th festivities so successful and to all who assisted on July 5 in the clean-up of the town.

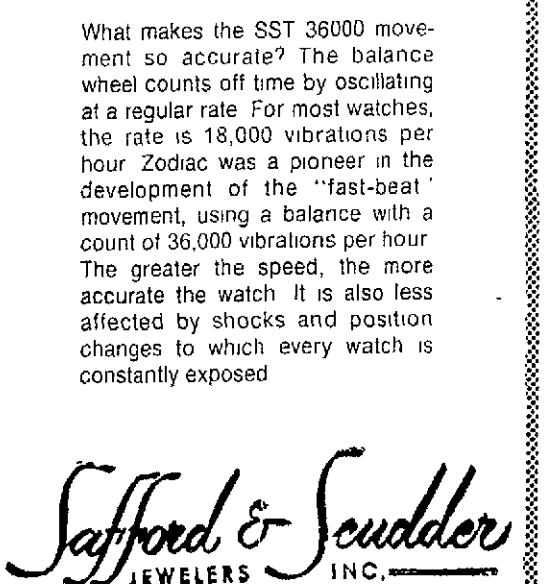
Brig Gen Richard Montgomery reinforced the remnants of Gen Arnold's volunteers on the St. Lawrence near Montreal when the two commanders decided on Dec 31, 1775 to storm Quebec with their 900 men, despite the city's 1800 defenders. A blizzard created drifts of six feet as a few men succeeded in scaling the city's walls Montgomery was killed and Arnold wounded Arnold's retreating army left behind 100 killed and 300 captured against minimal British casualties The following July, the British fleet arrived and forced the Americans to give up any attempt at conquering Canada, The World Almanac notes.



Zodiac

Self-Winding Watches'

What makes the SST 36000 movement so accurate? The balance wheel counts off time by oscillating at a regular rate For most watches, the rate is 18,000 vibrations per hour Zodiac was a pioneer in the development of the "fast-beat" movement, using a balance with a count of 36,000 vibrations per hour The greater the speed, the more accurate the watch It is also less affected by shocks and position changes to which every watch is constantly exposed

Area Musicians Are Invited to Join Bard Chamber Music Center

ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON--Chamber music enthusiasts in Ulster and surrounding counties are invited to join the Bard Chamber Music Center for amateur string players and pianists in a two-week session of music at Bard College, Annandale-on-Hudson, from July 21 to Aug 8

The organizing committee for the Center is composed of John Deschere, George Grosberg and Alida Rubin The programs will consist of informal and non-structured sessions, and although there will be no formal classes of instruction, coaching may be obtained from the staff consisting of Karen Phillips, Paul Wolfe, George Grosberg and John Deschere

Karen Phillips, director of the center, is the wellknown violist and composer who has performed as soloist in recital and with orchestras and chamber groups throughout the United States, Europe, the Middle East, the Soviet Union and Canada She also has appeared at numerous music festivals, was awarded a number of prestigious prizes and honors and is considered a gifted mistress of her instrument as well as an important modern composer

George Grosberg, violist and violinist and John Deschere, cellist and treasurer of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Orchestra, also will be available for direction and coaching

Bard College is an appropriate choice of residence for the new group since the college boasts an admirable curriculum in the arts Its own president, Leon Botstein is a noteworthy amateur violinist and at one time conducted the White Mountain Music and Arts Festival Botstein had been invited to conduct the PDQ Bach program which presented in May by the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Orchestra

Accommodations at Bard College for the participants will be campus style with single and double rooms Dining will be cafeteria style with a private dining room for the chamber music residents Of the six playing rooms in the college, three will have new grand pianos It is suggested that the players bring their own music

Interested musicians are invited to contact Alida Rubin, secretary of the Bard Chamber Music Center, Stone Ridge, N Y 12484 for complete details

ERMA BOMBECK

Her Blow-and-go Coiffure Blew Too Much and Went Too Far

Speaking of my hair you may remember that in the last episode, I opted for the Brillo pad look, which followed the Grace Kelly syndrome (I was blessing children in supermarkets), which came after the wig that got dandruff and died

Don t get me wrong I loved the little tight curls close to my head, it's only when they started to grow out that I looked like an aging pepper plant

That s when I went for the Blow n' Go In my mind, I saw it as a coiffure with the maintenance of a self-cleaning oven You just set a few dials, and zip, you were ready for the ball

This isn t exactly true

My blow n'go blew too much and went too far

To begin with you need one of those Dorothy Hamill haircuts, which look terrific but you get this intense urge to ice skate Secondly, there are two definitions of blow

There's blow (verb) to send forth a current of air with force as a wind that blows gently through the chimes

There's also blow (noun) a sudden unexpected shock an unfortunate or calamitous happening

My blow was definitely an unfortunate and calamitous happening I laundered my hair and borrowed my son s hair dryer

Without any warning whatsoever, that dryer sucked up my two pitiful strands of hair nearly pulling my feet off the floor It was only by a miracle that I was able to kick the plug out of the wall thus saving my entire face from being devoured by the appliance

'That dryer nearly killed me I said to my son

'You used a dryer for that measly amount of hair? For that you could just hang out of the no-draft in the car What do they call it?'

A blow n' go

Any place you want to go

You re kidding You look like a guy I know in the Marine Corps He s too embarrassed to go anyplace

When my husband came home he looked at me and said, 'What happened to your hair?

I blew it' I said

He shook his head I ll say

DEAR ABBY

Giving Birth to a Child Doesn't Necessarily Make a Woman a Mother

DEAR ABBY: Six years ago I married a divorced man whose sons came to live with us because their "real" mother thought they would be better off with their father. (They were then 11 and 13.)

I love these boys and think they feel some affection for me, yet on Mother's Day they always remember their biological mother with flowers, and I don't even get a card.

In six years I've done a ton of laundry, mended their clothes, cooked for them, shopped for them and spent hundreds of hours chauffeuring them around. I've nursed them when they were sick and listened to their troubles. I lectured them about sex and drugs, instilling in them decent moral values I couldn't have done more had they been my biological children.

Their "real" mother has had very little time for them. She never took them on a trip or asked them to spend a holiday with her. (She phones occasionally and makes plans to be with them, but if something better comes along, she cancels.)

I think stepmothers deserve a little recognition on Mother's Day. Just because we didn't bear the children doesn't mean we don't feel like "real" mothers. It would be a kindness to all stepmothers if you would print this.— —HURT ON MOTHER'S DAY

DEAR HURT: I have long held the view that giving birth to a child doesn't make a woman a mother any more than owning a piano makes a person a musician. But the woman who takes a child into her home because she wants to and raises that child with love and understanding is, in every sense of the word, a "real" mother.

DEAR ABBY. I have a severe hearing loss. Six years ago I bought a hearing aid and experimented with it for a long time. I finally gave it up because it magnified background noises I had not heard for years and were more annoying than not hearing at all.

My family criticized me for not wearing my hearing aid, but I've trained myself to read lips and find it much more to my liking.

I do miss a lot at social gatherings as I can listen to only one person at a time, but I've learned to live with that, too.

Sometimes I feel that I'm better off if I don't hear everything that goes on.—DOING ALL RIGHT

DEAR DOING: Hooray for you! Not everyone who has a hearing loss feels severely handicapped.

DEAR ABBY: We are a young couple expecting our first child in two weeks. Our best friends had their first child (a boy) and they named him the very name we had chosen for our baby! We know they got the idea from us because when we told them the name we liked for a boy, they both agreed it was a great name.

We felt obvious resentment when we found out they used our name.

Our question: The other couple will probably feel obvious resentment now if we name ours what we had planned to, but would we be showing poor taste toward our friends in doing so?—NAMELESS IN OKLAHOMA

DEAR NAMELESS: Go ahead and use the name you like. Surely the world is big enough for two boys with the same name. And there's always the chance that yours will be a girl.

Poetry Winner Named

STONE RIDGE—A poem written by James J. Clarke, an assistant professor of English at Ulster County Community College, has been awarded first prize in the national poetry contest sponsored by the San Diego Branch of the National League of American Pen Women.

The poem, "Hiroshima 1946 a Year Later; a Woman Speaks to the Buddha," earlier received a second place award. It has a setting in Hiroshima a year after the atomic bomb was dropped on the Japanese city.

More than 100 of Professor Clarke's poems have been published including 19 anthologies. He also is the author of a book of his own poems, "Trip Tickets."

A West Hurley resident, Professor Clarke received his BA Degree from Montclair State College. He has taken additional graduate courses in English at New York University.

BICENTENNIAL YEAR EXHIBIT by the 38 artists of the Ulster County Artists Association is on display at the Statewide Savings Bank main office, 267 Wall St., Kingston. Jane Bleavin, president, adjusts one of the paintings. Included in the canvasses are local scenes such as the House on Frog Alley, The Tappen House, old stone Aqueduct Bridge at High Falls circa 1830. The exhibition will run through the Bicentennial month of July. (Freeman photo by Haines)

No determination for the location of a permanent seat of the government of the United States was made by Congress until 1790. After long discussion Congress passed an act, approved July 16, 1790 stating "That a district of territory not exceeding 10 miles square to be located as hereafter directed on the river Potomac accepted for permanent seat of the government of the United States." The World Almanac notes that the federal government was transferred to the District of Columbia on the first Monday of December, 1800.

The first known system for delivering water to cities was built by the Phoenicians. The Greeks copied the system of digging tunnels to bring water to their cities, and the Romans developed it with aquaducts 50 to 100 feet high that brought water to Rome from more than 60 miles away.

Randall's Third Invitational Victory in Four Years

Leon Adds Another Wiltwyck Title

By STEVE KANE
Freeman Staff

KINGSTON — At the Wiltwyck Golf Club, there is a standard line that gets delivered to the opponents of Leon Randall. It goes, "Don't worry, Bob, Ralph, Bill, whoever, all it takes to beat him is pars and birdies."

Dave Blakely didn't have the pars and birdies in numbers sufficient enough to stop Randall from successfully defending his Wiltwyck Invitational title Sunday, so for the third time in four years Blakely became the runnerup after Randall scored a 3 and 2 victory in the championship finals.

Blakely turned back Rick Barthel's challenge in the morning semifinals, 3 and 2. Randall, meanwhile, annihilated Ed Lawrence in the other semi, 7 and 6.

The two winners then paired off to reenact the show they have given here unbroken since 1973 In the past, however, their struggle has been closer. Randall won the opening hole when Blakely started badly with a double bogey, and Big Dave never caught up.

A hitter of prodigious tee shots, Blakely drove into a pond to lose the 15th hole and fall three holes behind. Randall then scrambled for a par and a half on the 16th to close out the match.

Randall was customarily nonchalant about the latest addition to his trophy case.

"We were pretty sloppy," was his evaluation of the championship finals. Sloppy being in Randall's case twoover-par for the 16 holes of their match.

Still, Randall admitted the championship was his most difficult match of the tournament. "I scored pretty well all weekend," he said.

Specifically, he began the tourney with a 74 in the qualifying round, eliminated highly regarded Ralph DeStefano in the first round with a three-under-par performance, was just one-over while beating John Durcan, and matched par to defeat Lawrence.

While Blakely snapped off a few too many hooks, Randall made the turn two holes up. He helped himself out with three early birdies, one via a magnificent second shot on the second hole, another with a 35-foot snake on the eighth hole.

Both players felt the turning point came on 11. After each put their drives in a trap on the short par three, Randall bogied and still won the hole.

"That was my first double bogey there in two years," said Blakely afterwards. "That really hurt because I'd just won nine and ten."

It also hurt because Randall doesn't give his opponents too many opportunities. "They say the difference between a pro and an amateur is that an amateur makes mistakes," Blakely said. "Well, Leon doesn't make very many mistakes. You can't let him get the tees. You've got to get in and win one and get him behind you."

That fact that the same men were again in the finals was no surprise. Randall is the favorite whereever he goes, and Blakely is a bear at match play. Blakely saw another reason.

"I've had the luck of the draw for four years to be in a different bracket. I know if I'm in the finals, he'll be there too."

Neither semifinal match was close. Lawrence fell apart against Randall and lasted only 12 holes. Barthel, given a good chance for a berth in the finals, lost his touch at short range and finally succumbed on the 15th.

In other results, Gary Lewis went away with first flight honors after soundly trouncing George Pacheco, 5 and 4. In the second flight, Rick Bates defeated Kurt Swenson, in the third Frank Holcomb prevailed over Paul Barlow, in the fourth Bob Finn beat John Hall, and in the fifth Dan Potter turned back Norm Serinsky.

After his opening defeat to Randall, DeStefano battled back through the beaten eight of the championship flight to take a consolation prize with a 4 and 3 victory over John Boeheim.

CHIP SHOTS...Blakely drove poorly for seven holes until a tip helped straighten him out. "Leon told me what I was doing wrong"...Host pro Harvey Bostic illustrated Blakely's power with story: "We were on the seventh fairway (a par five), and he had a six iron I said, 'Why don't you go for the green?' He said, 'I am.'...Boeheim, a newcomer to the tourney, impressed people with his swing. He is the head basketball coach at Syracuse University

Bruner Leads U.S. Charge

Americans Off to Fast Start

"We're the best," he screamed. "Hey, hey, USA, all the way This is the greatest thing that could have happened to us We're gonna get everyone psyched and get more medals than anyone gave us credit for."

It was that kind of day for the Americans when politics almost gave way to sports, and matching each of their heroic deeds with words to match, the United States has gotten off to a running, boastful start in the Olympic Games

The first day of activity began for the U S with a devastating 106-86 victory over European champion Italy in basketball, which immediately brought words of concession from every rival coach except Russia's

Then, in the space of 15 minutes during the evening, the Yanks reasserted their claim to world supremacy in swimming by setting two world records and earning three medals. And the sky-high Bruner, anticipating a telephone call from President Ford for being the first American gold medal winner, proclaimed, "We have a chance to get every gold in every men's event. The whole thing just freaked me out."

Bruner, who had his head shaved six hours before his race, led a U.S. sweep in the 200-meter butterfly with his world record time of one minute, 59.23 seconds. This came just 15 minutes after 6-6 John Naber, with a full head of blond hair, set a world mark of 56.19 seconds in qualifying for tonight's finals of the 100-meter backstroke.

Before he got dressed, Naber watched the award ceremony for Bruner, silver medalist Steve Gregg and bronze medalist Bill Forrester, and then yelled to a friend, "Hey, go ask Bruner if that made the hair stand up on his head."

For his own accomplishment, the outgoing Naber said, "I feel really good, but I'm not fooling myself. I haven't won a gold medal yet. The record will go tomorrow (Monday) night."

The swimming successes also included a silver medal for the women's 400-meter relay team, and a perfect 6-for-6 advance by Americans into two final events tonight, the men's 100-meter backstroke and the women's 100-meter freestyle.

"This was a super start for us," said Jack Nelson, coach of the women's team. "After the poor start we had in 1972 (at Munich), I'm really very happy our girls have done as well as they have."

There were only two finals on the opening night swimming program, and both resulted in world records. Shortly after Bruner set his, the powerful East German women broke their own mark for the 400-meter medley relay by more than six seconds in 4:07.95

It was the first of what could be a bumper crop of gold medals for 17-year-old Kornelia Ender, and the lithsome blonde is favored to pick up her second in tonight's 100-meter freestyle. This race also could be the occasion for another blonde, Shirley Babashoff, to earn her second medal in as many nights after she received a silver in the medley relay.

The other swimming finals tonight are the men's 100-meter backstroke, in which Naber is favored over East Germany's Roland Matthes, Ender's fiance and the former world record holder; the women's 200-meter butterfly, which should go to East Germany; and the men's 200-meter freestyle, where the U.S. could accomplish another 1-2-3 sweep with Naber, Steve Furniss and Jim Montgomery.

In addition to the four in swimming, there were three other gold medal events scheduled for today, two in shooting and one in weightlifting.

Although the U.S. has played only one game in basketball, the concessions came trickling in following the awesome destruction of Italy, which beat defending Olympic champion Russia three weeks ago and was considered to have a good chance for a medal.

"I think only one team here has a shot at the gold medal," commented Yugoslavian Coach Mirko Novosel, "and that team is the United States. I have not seen the USA team, but I have seen their players and that is enough for me."

Added Canadian Coach Jack Donohue, who was Kareem Abdul-Jabbar's high school coach in New York, "They are so intimidating. That was the most aggressive I've ever seen them play. They forced the play on Italy. They scare you."

All but one of the 12 players on the U.S. roster scored, with Adrian Dantley notching 20 points, Mitch Kupchak 19 and Scott May 16. The Americans, who next play Puerto Rico Tuesday, led by as many as 30 points.

There were three other gold medals awarded Sunday. East Germany gained a second gold as Uwe Potteck set a world shooting record with 573 of a possible 600 points, and the Russians also picked up a pair of golds. They won the 100kilometer cycling race in 2 hours, 8 minutes and 53 seconds and Alexander Voronin equaled his own combined total world record of 533-½ pounds to win the flyweight title in weightlifting.

The latest scoreboard count on the political front had 19 countries either failing to appear or else boycotting the Games over the presence here of New Zealand, whose rugby team currently is touring South Africa.

Marz Tosses No-Hitter As Braves Crush Crusaders

KINGSTON — Bob Marz hurled a no-hitter Sunday night as the Kingston Braves belted the Monroe-Woodbury Crusaders, 11-1, in a Hudson Valley Rookie League baseball game at Dietz Stadium.

Marz struck out seven and walked four in throwing his gem. The only blemish on it was a first inning Crusader run on a walk, a hit batsman and an error.

After that initial setback, Marz and his Braves mates were in complete control as the locals rallied for five runs in the fourth, two in the fifth and four more in the sixth to make the game a runaway.

Tom Gallo sparked the Kingston attack with three hits and three runs batted in. Steve Hughes doubled and singled twice and Tim Cole provided a three-run triple.

A bases loaded single by Gallo scored two runs in the fourth and put Kingston ahead for good Singles by Hughes and Gerry Hawkins brought in three more runs in the frame.

Gallo singled in another run in the fifth and yet another crossed the plate on an error. Cole's bases loaded triple and an RBI single by Karl Lezette closed the books in the sixth.

Monroe-Woodbury's closest bid at a hit came in the sixth when Ken Walsh smashed one off Marz. Shorstop Nick Malgieri charged in, recovered the ball, and threw the runner out.

The win upped Kingston's second round record to 5-0. The Braves are 16-1 overall. They'll host Wappingers Falls Wednesday at 8 p.m. at Dietz.

David Graham Refused to Fold

HARRISON (UPI) — David Graham was supposed to fold.

He was expected to shrivel up and collapse in front of a national television audience while the golfing "Goliaths" like Johnny Miller, Tom Watson and Ben Crenshaw stomped him into the ground down the stretch and divided the loot.

After all, who was David Graham anyway? And what business did he have leading the $300,000 Westchester Classic for three rounds?

Well, David Graham, who had won only one tournament on the PGA circuit in six years, showed them all Sunday that when it came down to "nitty gritty" time he could handle the pressure better than any of them

Using his putter as a slingshot, little David slew the big Goliaths in the final round of the tournament by finishing with a 12-under-par 272 to win by three strokes and take home the biggest paycheck of his career, $60,000.

Graham's final round of even par 71 was his worst of the four-day tournament, but it was all he needed because the guys who were supposed to make a run at him never got going.

Miller, the British Open champion whom many thought would apply the most pressure, played himself out of contention on the front nine while Crenshaw didn't make his move until it was too late.

As the big names faded in the distance, it became apparent that the only way Graham could lose was to blow it himself. And that wasn't to be because Graham had told himself that he was as good as anyone out there, so why not prove it?

"Last night I thought about the tension," the 30-year-old Aussie admitted "I said to myself 'Why should I feel tension? Why should I feel nervous? Why should I feel scared?'

"I said to myself 'You're doing what you're supposed to be doing.' I said 'you came to play golf just like everyone else. You came with as good a chance as anybody. So why should you be apprehensive?'"

Rather than play cautiously, Graham attacked the course early and it paid off with birdies on the fourth and fifth holes. He bogeyed the sixth and eighth holes to finish the front nine in even-par 36, but he knew that if he matched par the rest of the way he would be hard to catch.

"I didn't know if I could get (the lead) into the clubhouse but nobody really made a run at me. I thought if I could get through 11 and 12 I'd be able to finish all right. Fortunately it was windy again today and that kept the scores down," said Graham.

As it turned out, the most serious challenges to Graham were made by two other relative unknowns, Mike Wynn and Fuzzy Zoeller.

Wynn, who said he would quit the circuit after this year unless he could break even financially, began the day four strokes behind and reduced that margin to two midway through the final round. But he couldn't handle the pressure on the back side and bogeyed four of the last seven holes.

Zoeller also closed to within two strokes of Graham by posting three straight birdies on the front nine, but he played the second side in only even par and saw his chances evaporate on the 16th hole when he took a bogey four.

Graham admitted he might have benefitted from the fact there were no scoreboards around to remind him who was breathing down his neck.

"There were no scoreboards from 10 to 14 and maybe that was a blessing in disguise," said Graham "I didn't know what the situation was with the other guys. When I got to 14 I looked at the scoreboard for the first time all day and found out I was far in front. It gave me four shots to play with. I felt I could even make a double bogey. I could afford one bad shot, maybe even two."

The only sign of nervousness Graham displayed came on the 17th green when he three-putted from 15 feet for a bogey four By then the tournament was safely tucked away, however, and he finished with a par on the final hole.

It was then that he could relax for the first time.

"I'm a very intense player, not happy-go-lucky," he said. "I don't have the super talent of the great players. I can't relax.

Youth Tops Experience

By SAM PILLSBURY
Freeman Staff

Youth (Dent) won, 6-7, 6-2, 6-3.

The Stolle-Dent singles contest kept a crowd of nearly 300 entertained with both excellent tennis and some off-the-cuff comedy.

The veteran Stolle, who in his long career has helped Australia to a number of Davis Cup victories and was a finalist at Wimbledon three years running, squeaked by fellow Aussie Dent in the first set in a tiebreaker. Dent's quickness seemed no match for Stolle's finesse as the latter displayed his full repetoire of dinks, lobs and even a between-the-legs get.

Dent, who won the French and Australian Junior singles championshiop in 1968, lost his first three serves of the match, but found the touch again in the second and blasted by Stolle, 6-2. Stolle battled back in the third, but could not hold serve against Dent's strong returns and went down 6-3.

Both Stolle and Dent enjoyed themselves on the court, throwing comments back and forth to themselves as well as to the linesmen who issued a number of questionable calls. Remembering his coaching role, Stolle commented to Dent after he had ripped a backhand down the line by him,"I've been trying to get you to play that way all bloody season!"

The previous game, Dent had complained after a long rally in which Stolle sent him gamboling all over the court only to lose the point, "You know I won't be able to play tomorrow night now."

Comments not withstanding, both Stolle and Dent returned after singles to play with local performers Peter Boyd and Lloyd Emmanuel in a somewhat less rousing set of doubles. In that contest, Emmanuel's serve appeared to provide the edge as the Stolle-Emmanuel duo triumphed 10-5.

Oil Burner Paces MR-OTB Field

MONTICELLO—Ben Webster turned on Oil Burner's afterburner Sunday at Monticello Raceway for a jet-propelled 1:58 4/5 mile to lead the field of 10 qualifiers for the July 25the $300,000 Monticello-OTB Classic.

The Most Happy Fella colt won his division by two lengths over Crafty Rival and Fulla Spark. Fourth place finisher Scuba Diver also qualified with a 1:59 4/5.

In another elimination race, Wolf Pack came on to nip Mandate at the wire by a half-length in 1:59 3/5 with Atashy third also qualifying.

The third division saw Del Cameron find racing rooom along the rail to squeeze by Speedy Romeo for a length win in 2:00 flat. Third, also qualifying, was Joe O'Brien's colt Armbro Roger.

Post positions for the richest single harness racing event, the so-called Race for the Gold, were to be determined in a drawing at here today.

Oil Burner's performance for owner William Brooks of Wilmington, Del., was impressive. Webster had Oil Burner to the half in .59 3/5 after outduelling Bill Haughton's Boehm's Eagle, building a comfortable length and a half lead as he whizzead by the three-quarters in 1:28 4/5. A late charge over the second half squeezed Crafty Rival, Fulla Spark and Scuba Diver into the finals.

Haughton got the double-gaited Speedy Romeo to the front in a :59 3/5 half in his division and seemed to tire in the stretch while Del Cameron found room on the inside to pass him for a victory with Precious Fella. Joe O'Brien had a late charge to the wire with Armbro Roger to move into the finalae with his third place finish.

Wolf Pack, the early line favorite for the Classic II, had a tough time putting away Mandate in 1:59 3/5. They exchangead the lead to the half in .58 3/5 with Merrit Dokey getting Mandate to the front. In the stretch Eldon Harner shook up Wolf Pack from third and rushed to tthe wire in front by a half-length. Del Insko made a game rush from fifth at the half to get Atashy into third and qualifying position.

The Sunday matinee crowd of 7,189 saw Ben Webster score a double, taking the featured $8500 pacing handicap with Currituck Star in 2:01, two lengths in front of Italian Barmin and Gypsy Bret, paying $4.00, $2.60 and $2.40.

Six Unbeatens in Soccer

KINGSTON—Six teams remain undefeated in the Mid Hudson Soccer League They are the Rotary Dolphins and Chick Dalton Memorial in the under 18 division, Kingston Chrysler Plymouth in the under 16's, Port Ewen and Greimel's of the under 14's and Yallums in the under 16 division

Two of the undefeated clubs Port Ewen AA (3-0) and Greimel s (2-0) will meet this week to fight it out for the under 14 division lead In what had been the other close battle, Kingston Chrysler Plymouth has moved four points ahead of its nearest rival in the under 16's, the Rhinebeck Sportsmen

Falcons Down Ions

WAPPINGERS FALLS — Roger Plantier, making his first start since suffering a broken collarbone last spring at Albany State University, hurled a complete game Sunday as the New Paltz Falcons trimmed the Wappingers Ions, 7-3, in a Hudson Valley Rookie League baseball game.

NP, in evening its record at 9-9, got a homer and a double from Bill Schiller; two singles and two runs batted in from Greg Garcia; a homer from Mike Freer; and an RBI double from Rick Pesavento.

Plantier fanned two and scattered 10 hits.

The Falcons are at Marlboro on Wednesday

Rankin (Who Else?) Wins LPGA Borden Tourney

DUBLIN, Ohio (UPI) — Ho hum, Judy Rankin has won another golf tournament

"I'm very happy about it," said Rankin after sewing up her fifth victory of the year Sunday, the $70,000 Borden Classic, "but I'm losing some of the elation It's becoming a business I'm still thrilled, but it comes out different"

Rankin, the first member of the Ladies Professional Golf Association to win $100,000 in one year, shot a five-under par 67 on the 6,250-yard Riviera Country Club course Sunday for a 54-hole score of 205, 11 shots under par That was good for a five-stroke margin over runnersup Hollis Stacy and Pat Bradley

The 31 year old Texan, who pocketed another $10 000 for the win, had started the day in a tie with Stacy, but ran off three straight birdies on the second, third and fourth holes and it was, for the most part, all over

"I had a pretty good lead most of the day," said Rankin but I never did feel real good until there were only a couple of holes to play There are so many good players out there

Johncock Cops Michigan Race

CAMBRIDGE JUNCTION, Mich (UPI) — Gordon Johncock coaxing all the fuel his tanks could muster through the final laps captured the championship car portion of the Michigan Iwin 200 Sunday at Michigan International Speedway

A J Foyt took the second 200 lap race for stock cars

In the first race Johncock the track s one lap record holder who had not won on the two mile oval held off Indianapolis 500 winner Johnny Rutherford to register his first victory in the USAC Indy car series after two seconds and a pair of thirds

Foyt finished third in that race followed by Roger McCluskey and Johnny Parsons

Miss Guthrie who set a closed course speed record for women in qualifying Saturday at 186 480 miles per hour ran steadily all day but was hampered by an unscheduled pit stop to change a flat tire She finished 13th seven laps behind Johncock

Johncock s fuel problem came on his last pit stop, when a coupling malfunctioned on the refueling gear and the tank on his Wildcat Offy wasn t filled

However he was aided by a yellow flag when Larry Cannon spun seven laps before the finish Johncock then was able to hang on for the victory

Fuel problems also spoiled the chances of Foyt and Pocono 500 champion Al Unser who made strong showings early

Foyt starting on the pole, threatened to make a runaway of the event in the first third of the race before running out of fuel on the back stretch on the 33rd lap

Unser who took the lead just past the midway mark also ran out of fuel while leading at the 74 lap mark Johncock then got the lead

Parsons Scores At Nashville

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Benny Parsons increased his season winnings to $136,560 Saturday night with a first place finish in the Nashville 420 stock car race.

Parsons took the lead for keeps on the 330th lap when Buddy Baker dropped out because of car trouble.

"I really felt sorry for Buddy," Parsons said. "I know just how he felt. He ran an awfully good race and was still running hard when he went out. I don't know if I could have caught him or not."

Parsons, driving a Chevrolet, picked up $6,615. Richard Petty finished second in his Dodge, followed by Darrell Waltrip.

It Took Rangers' Rabbit a Night to Work

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) — The Texas Rangers needed a little luck Sunday night, so they went out and got themselves the biggest rabbit's foot they could find—a live one, no less.

The rabbit, named "Streak" by the players, looked on from the dugout as Steve Hargan pitched 12 innings and totaled a career high 10 strikeouts while Juan Beniquez scored the tying run in the ninth inning and drove home the winning run with a single in the 12th.

The result was a 3-2 victory over the New York Yankees to halt a 10-game losing streak and prevent the Rangers from falling into third place in the American League West.

Texas is 10½ games behind first-place Kansas City and only one percentage point ahead of the surging Oakland A's.

"We had a meeting the other day," Hargan said. "Brad Corbett (Ranger majority owner) wanted to know what he could do to help us.

"He went around the room and talked to everyone. When he got to Lenny (Randle) Lenny said he'd like to have a great, big, black rabbit's foot.

The rabbit didn't help Saturday night as the Rangers lost their 10th straight to New York 7-5. When Hargan came to the clubhouse for Sunday's game, the rabbit was in his locker.

"I told Lenny if we didn't win, I was going to stick that rabbit, feet, eyeballs and all, in my micro-wave oven and see what happened," Hargan said with a laugh.

Fortunately, the rabbit's good health was secured after the Ranger's fought back from a 2-0 New York lead with runs in the fourth, ninth and 12th innings.

Texas tied it in the ninth when Randle singled Beniquez home. In the 12th, Jim Sundberg walked, reached second on Tom Grieve's sacrifice fly and scored with two outs on Beniquez' single.

George Brett doesn't mind keeping an open mind and that's the reason why he doesn't get cheated very often.

Brett kept a clean slate upstairs and belted a two-run homer in the seventh inning while Marty Pattin and Steve Mingori tossed a combined seven-hitter Sunday to lead the Kansas City Royals to a 6-3 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

"I have to go up there with an open frame of mind. What happens if I go up there thinking that I'm going to hit a home run and they pitch me outside?" Brett asked. "I'm not going to start thinking home runs, either, because that would just mess me up."

The Royals touched Boston starter and loser Reggie Cleveland for a second-inning run, scored three more runs in the fourth and finished by roughing up Boston reliever Bill Lee.

Lee, who injured his pitching arm in a fracas with New York's Graig Nettles earlier this year, made his second appearance since that accident and retired eight batters before walking Amos Otis in the eighth. The mistake proved costly when Brett followed with his sixth homer.

It marked the second day in a row that Brett had beaten the defending American League champion Red Sox. On Saturday he stroked a ninth-inning homer to give Royals a victory. In meetings between the two clubs this season, Kansas City has now beaten Boston seven out of eight times.

In other American League games, California downed Baltimore 8-6, Cleveland beat Minnesota 6-1, Chicago pummelled Milwaukee 13-3 and Oakland ripped Detroit 10-1.

A's 10, Tigers 1

Oakland ran the Tigers into the ground as they pilfered four bases and pulled off two double steals after running up nine stolen bases in three previous games. Sal Bando broke and 0-for-16 streak by driving in three runs with a fifth-inning double and two-run, sixth-inning single.

White Sox 13, Brewers 3

Chicago rapped out a season-high 16 hits, highlighted by Lamar Johnson's first two home runs of the season, good for four runs. Kevin Bell and Bill Stein each stroked three-run homers. Milwaukee's All-Star pitcher Bill Travers went 1 2-3 innings and was slapped around for seven hits and seven earned runs before departing.

Indians 6, Twins 1

Cleveland's Rico Carty blasted a pair of two-run homers and rookie Stan Thomas, primarily a relief pitcher, allowed Minnesota eight hits to hike his record to 2-1.

Orioles 8, Angels 6

Recently acquired Tony Solaita hit his first homer of the year and also drove in two runs with a first-inning single to pace Baltimore's victory over California.

Kong Makes an Exception

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dave Kingman, who doesn't like to talk about home runs, made an exception for No. 32 Sunday and Mickey Lolich got by with a sagging fastball to give the New York Mets a 2-0 over the Atlanta Braves.

"I had no velocity at all on the ball in the bullpen but I kept the ball down all day," Lolich said after hurling a two-hitter and his 41st career shutout. "I couldn't throw very hard but the ball was sinking so I didn't worry about throwing it hard. About 90 of the 107 pitches were fastballs.

Lolich, who has pitched better than his 5-10 record would indicate, said he was surprised at his performance after the All-Star Game layoff. "It's the first time I've pitched in eight days," he said. "I'm usually at my best every three or four days."

Kingman's towering shot in the fourth inning gave him 32 in 92 games and put him ahead of Babe Ruth's pace but left him four behind Roger Maris and his asterisk.

The interest in his home run production, Kingman said, is "good for baseball and creates a lot of enthusiasm. Everything I have I owe to baseball and I'm just trying to contribute to the team and to the game in every way I can."

Referring to the last New York stars who made a run at Ruth's record, Kingman added, "I don't really recall (Mickey) Mantle and Maris in '61. I was in grade school on the other coast. It's the other side of the world."

Lolich retired 16 batters in a row after Jimmy Wynn singled with one out in the fourth before Rod Gilbreath reached base on Mike Phillips' error with two out in the ninth inning. Lolich fanned four, allowed two singles and walked none in improving his record to 5-10. Darryl Chaney singled in the third with one out for the only other Atlanta hit.

The Mets had taken a 1-0 lead in the third when Roy Staiger led off with a single, went to second on a sacrifice by Lolich and scored on Felix Millan's two-out triple to left.

The Philadelphia Phillies are not only winning by doing things right, they are also winning by doing things differently.

The Phillies edged Los Angeles 2-1 Sunday on a controversial play that had Dodger first baseman Steve Garvey still steaming in the clubhouse.

Mike Schmidt scored the winning run from third base with two outs in the ninth inning on an unusual play in which teammate Jerry Martin was trapped in a run down between first and second base.

The bizzare rally began when Schmidt was hit by a pitch by loser Charlie Hough, 7-4. Greg Luzinski followed with a single, sending Schmidt to third. Martin came in to run for Luzinski before Tommy Hutton grounded to Garvey, who tagged first and began to run Martin toward second. Schmidt broke for the plate while Garvey was trying to tag Martin, who evaded the tag and returned to first safely as Schmidt scored. Garvey protested in vain that Martin had run out of the baseline.

"I still think he was out of the baseline," said Garvey. "When he went out he went out at least three or four feet, and the rules say you can't go more than three feet out".

In other games Cincinnati outslugged Pittsburgh 9-8, San Diego shaded Chicago 2-1, San Francisco edged St. Louis 5-4 before losing 5-4 in 10 innings, and Houston swept a doubleheader from Montreal, 7-6 in 10 innings and 14-1.

Reds 9, Pirates 8

Pinch-hitter Mike Lum's two-run triple keyed a six-run fifth inning outburst as the Reds edged Pittsburgh.

Padres 2, Cubs 1

Rookie Jerry Turner looped a two-out ninth inning single into short leftfield to score pinch-runner Bob Davis from second base to lead the Padres over Chicago.

Jean Adams TEEN FORUM

By Jean Adams, Phd.

SHE SAID NO: (Comment) So often girls comment about guys wanting sex as soon as a relationship begins I'll confess, some guys do want it right away. I did. That is, until I met Vikki.

We had been going together only a short time when I started trying to pull a fast one off on her. Well, she really put me in my place, and I've never been so glad

I'm glad to say our respect for each other is still strong, even though we don't go together any longer I think if a few more girls could speak up and tell the guys how they feel, the guys would cooperate. It is more mature to talk things out —A Listening Guy in Pennsylvania.

(A.) I don't get many letters from "listening guys" so I'm happy to have yours. I am confident that there are many more boys who feel as you do and who will be reassured by your "confession." Also, what you say should be a help to many girls in deciding the right thing to do.

HAIR. (Comment) You keep the faith with the teen-agers by sympathizing with them, by nudging some along, and by giving timely caution Good work!

Wish you would print something they might notice (NOT MY LETTER) and heed about doing their grooming ritual on public transportation They whip out the brush and begin to brush out the dandruff and loose hair all over the poor riders, who have to sit by and get it in the face and lap

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

TUESDAY, JULY 20

Your birthday today: Creative forces at work in your life this year take you onto a different course than the one you've been following Relationships at best are rigorously tested in choppy going, according to changing needs and what you invest. Prosperity comes naturally as you pursue the most effective system. Today's natives act on impulse, seldom explain their thoughts The idealists break with tradition to build new order.

Aries (March 21-April 19): You only waste time worrying about the immediate situation, small resources, moody behavior of loved ones Get busy, work hard on practical details

Taurus (April 20-May 20): There s a definite break with the past in events and conditions What you decide now is permanent. Going ahead alone achieves a long-desired final step

Gemini (May 21-June 20). Temptation to scatter energy and cash continues. Be consistent asking only for what you really want If you drive, be alert for others' erratic moves

Cancer (June 21-July 22). Seek privacy for meditation since it s essential you do your own thinking Be thrifty, let speculative ventures alone Use equipment of all types cautiously

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) Your remark is too strong for those who goofed, but whose help you still need The simpler your plan, the better Anything elaborate is upset by coincidence.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Even if you are right, don't take drastic action hastily. Everybody is prone to temperament. Give them room to recover. Home life has minor surprises.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Refuse to sign long-term contracts or accept lasting obligations. Incomplete advice comes from people not involved. Missed routine is tough to do later.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Impulsive dealings stir unwanted side effects If you're in unfamiliar territory, be wary of appearances There are reasons for things being as they are.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Rather than spread news, listen! Take note of the source on hearing amazing information Some changes are in order, but meditate before you move

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Leave the discussion to those who are anxious to argue A spur-of-the-moment trip is premature hold off. Put in time on your garden and various hobbies.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) . Let your actions speak for themselves. Don't explain. Others do exactly as they please make allowances accordingly, pick your path through crosscurrents.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): It's nice to know that prevailing unpredictable behavior is from natural causes Overlook baiting Give loved ones a chance to get over their moods.

The old expert was teaching his grandson "Here is a nightmare hand At least I still shudder when I remember it"

"What's nightmarish about it?" asked the 12-year-old "You simply duck one heart and win the second Then you cash four clubs and go after the diamonds If they break you have ten tricks If they don't, you go down one unless the hearts are 6-2 and the ace of spades is in the hand with the short hearts"

"Unfortunately," said the old man, "I was over twenty and playing in a total point team match I wanted to take the best play for three notrump and decided that diamonds were not likely to break, that hearts would be 5-3 or 4-4, that if I could get one spade trick home I would be sure of my contract and that if hearts broke 4-4 I would still bring home the bacon

"So, I won the first heart; led a diamond to dummy at trick two and played a low spade If East held the ace he would surely have ducked, but West took the trick, cashed four heart tricks and eventually won the match by a few points"

Identification Nears In Bizarre Busnaping

CHOWCHILLA, Calif. (UPI) — A mystery man has provided authorities with information that could lead to identification of two of the armed gunmen who kidnaped 26 school children and their bus driver.

Alameda County Sheriff's Lieutenant Ed Volpe said Sunday night that names and photographs of the two suspects could be obtained within 48 hours based on information given detectives by a Sonora, Calif., man.

The information, Volpe said, pinpoints where the suspects were "on specific dates within the last year."

In the hunt for the kidnapers, authorities discovered the two vans used to haul the victims to their underground cavern prison were purchased at a military surplus firm.

Madera County Sheriff Ed Bates said Sunday night the vans were purchased by the same man, using a fictitious name, in November at the Alameda County firm. A third one, he said, was bought at the same time by another using a phony name.

All three were registered with the state Department of Motor Vehicles at Los Gatos last Wednesday, the sheriff said.

Bates said the information resulted from a license number noted by the bus driver, Frank Ray, 55, and some of the older children.

Bates said the owner of the company confirmed the sales and Alameda County sheriff's deputies were trying to contact the salesman who handled all three transactions.

The youngsters were taken hostage by three men Thursday as Ray was driving them home from summer school. The bus was hidden in a remote, dry creekbed.

The victims were placed in a buried tractor-trailer van in a rock quarry near Livermore, 100 miles north of here. After 16 hours, they managed to dig themselves out.

The victims said they saw only three men and their heads were covered with stockings. They said the gunmen talked little and gave no inkling why they staged the kidnap. No ransom demands were made.

Ray himself underwent hypnosis Sunday as investigators tried to obtain more details. Bates said he gave them the license number for one van — this had been obtained earlier in questioning. And, the sheriff said, he provided some digits for the second.

A Los Angeles physicians placed Ray under hypnosis for 25 minutes. Bates said, "We didn't want to keep him under too long because this was an emotional thing that happened."

The sheriff said hypnosis was not used on the children because only Ray made a "deliberate effort" to notice details during the two-day ordeal.

Composite pictures of two of the suspects were distributed to all law enforcement agencies in California and Nevada. They were drawn by a sheriff's deputy with the aid of two of the children, Jeffrey Brown, 10, and his 9-year-old sister, Jennifer.

One showed a white man with short, dark hair, thick eyebrows, puffy eyelids and pimples. "He has kind of a pug nose that's wide — sort of flattened out as though broken," the Alameda County Sheriff's Department said.

The suspect in the second sketch wore a hat. Jeffrey said he was "a scrawny little fellow with a pillow stuffed in his shirt to make him look fat."

There was no composite on the third suspect. Bates said there possibly could be a fourth one.

U.S. Attorney General Edward Levy ordered the FBI out of the case Saturday on grounds it was not in federal jurisdiction because the victims had not been transported across state lines and there was no ransom demand.

Reagan, Ford Seek More Delegates

By UPI

During the next four weeks, Ronald Reagan and Gerald Ford will search for that elusive flashpoint of support that could end their increasingly bitter struggle for the Republican presidential nomination and allow the fulltime pursuit of Jimmy Carter and his unified Democratic party.

With the Aug. 16 GOP convention nearing, UPI's count showed President Ford has 1,098 delegates pledged or leaning to him while 1,062 were committed or leaning to Reagan. There are 99 uncommitted votes.

It is unquestionably from that pile of delegates that a victory for Ford or Reagan will emerge. Both men could boast of productive delegate harvests during last weekend as a wedge for more support.

The President drew to within 32 votes of the 1,130 needed for nomination in Kansas City by sweeping all 35 of Connecticut's delegates. But the windfall was tempered by Reagan's 20-0 shutout of Ford among Utah delegates on the same day.

While the Republicans were jockeying for position, Carter, the Democratic nominee, had a quiet time at home in Plains, Ga., stopping to teach a Sunday school class, and relaxing for the most part.

The 51-year-old former Georgia governor has no public appearances set until Thursday when he goes to New York for the day.

At the Sunday school class, Carter repeated his theme of love meaning simple justice.

"Love and insolation doesn't mean anything," Carter told the overflowing class. "But love, if applied to other people, can change their lives for the better, through what I decribe as 'simple justice' — fairness, equality, concern, compassion, redressing of grievances, elimination of inequality, recognizing the poor are the ones who suffer most, even in our society which is supposed to be fair."

Carter's campaign treasurer, Robert Lipshutz, said the campaign would live within the $21.8 million in federal funds allocated to him.

Carter and his running mate, Sen. Walter Mondale of Min- nesota, also are expected to meet soon, although no date has been set. The Democratic campaign will remain publicly inactive through much of August, according to Carter spokesmen.

While both Ford and Reagan relaxed Sunday, both men's staffs were mapping plans to woo the uncommitteds.

Ford has a series of meetings with uncommitted delegates from New York and New Jersey later in the week and a trip to Mississippi to meet that state's officially uncommitted slate also is being considered.

Reagan arrived back in California to tell reporters, "I don't think anybody will really know" who the GOP winner is "until the first ballot is counted."

He said he expected to arrive at Kansas City within 10 to 25 delegates of the nomination.

Viking 1 Up for Landing Preview

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Viking 1's three-legged lander was awakened from hibernation in orbit around Mars and tested early today to make sure it was ready to land Tuesday morning in a desert basin on the planet.

One system after another was turned on, tested and then turned off by radio signals sent 214 million miles from Earth to Mars by engineers at Jet Propulsion Laboratory's control center.

Except for its twin computers and a tape recorder, the lander's electronic parts had been dormant since November when they were checked following launch from Cape Canaveral, Fla.

Engineers also ran through the instruments designed to conduct the first search for life on Mars, examine its soil, monitor its weather and listen for marsquakes.

Viking 1 was sent its landing orders Sunday, but will not begin the three-hour 20-minute descent sequence until its computers receive a "go" command an hour before the sterilized lander is to separate from its orbiting mothership. This is scheduled for 4:52 a.m. EDT Tuesday.

Eight small braking rockets will start the descent from a 930-mile high orbit. The Viking lander will use the aerodynamic drag of its heat shield, a single pa Eight small braking rockets will start the descent from a 930-mile high orbit. The Viking lander will use the aerodynah.

The landing engines are needed because Mars' atmosphere is too thin to allow the parachute to ease the craft to a soft landing.

Touchdown is expected about 8:12 a.m. Tuesday in a 130-by60 mile area near the western slopes of what seems to be a vast, now-dry drainage basin for great rivers that apparently flowed over much of Mars millions or perhaps billions of years ago.

The basin is named Chryse, which means land of gold. By chance, Viking geologist Harold Masursky said Sunday there is a possibility the lander may find gold, diamonds, platinum and other exotic minerals on the surface.

He said this possibility exists because of the geologic makeup of the area. The basin is crisscrossed by what appear to be volcanic ridges. Pictures suggest highlands to the west have dried up river beds leading downslope.

The reasoning is that the highlands consist of igneous rock with a large variety of minerals. If great floods of water cut through those uplands, then some of these minerals would have been washed downstream and trapped by the ridges.

Radical Home Goes to Camp

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — This university community was a hotbed of radicalism in the 1960s. Today stacks of posters with revolutionary themes are gathering dust in its bookstores.

The young now want pictures of whales and Tarzan as well as posters of luminescent, futuristic design.

Anything that's "campy."

"It's just one of those things," Ed Hunolt, owner of the Berkeley Book Store across from the University of California, said. "The cycle has passed. The students are back to normal now.

"They've learned that they can best achieve their aims by working in the system ... The times are changing."

Hunolt said he once featured all the revolutionary posters.

Now, he said, the young people want maps of the fantastical countries described in the books of J.R.R. Tolkien, such as "Lord of the Rings," and pictures of Tarzan. The latter is a hot item among fans of Edgar Rice Burroughs.

Terri Gall, poster manager for the California Book Co., said the biggest sellers were advertising posters from the early decades of the century, among them one boasting of the attractions at the 1904 World's Fair in St. Louis.

"The whales are going like hotcakes," she said. "They're about the only animal poster still selling. The 'Save the Whales' movement really boosted them."
